

Court Upholds Right Of Voting at Age 18

States Retain Control Over Suffrage in All Non-Federal Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — A splintered Supreme Court upheld today the key provision of the 1970 Federal Voting Rights Law, giving the vote to 18-year-olds in presidential and congressional elections.

At the same time, the court approved by an 8-1 vote the law's abolition of long residence requirements for voting for president and by a unanimous vote suspension for five years of literacy tests wherever they exist in this country.

But the court turned around and ruled Congress has no power to order the states to allow 18-year-olds to vote in state and local elections.

These four conclusions by the court in judging the 1970 law were produced by four separate lineups. Justice Hugo L. Black was the key man so far as the 18-year-old vote was concerned.

Last Public Session

On the 18-year-old issue, Justice Hugo L. Black swung the significant fifth vote. He and Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall formed the majority to hold that Congress has the constitutional power to enfranchise 18-year-old citizens for national elections.

Then, Black swung to join Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and Harry A. Blackmun to bar any interference by Congress with the age for voters set by the states for state and local elections.

Single Dissent

Only Harlan dissented from the abolition of residence requirements of more than 30 days.

The 1970 law had lowered the voting age to 18 for all kinds of elections—national, state and local beginning Jan. 1—11 days from now.

Oregon and Texas had sued in the court against enforcement of the 18-year-old provision. Arizona had fought the literacy test ban and Idaho had opposed both the residence and 18-year-old provisions.

The states maintain the law takes away from them powers reserved to the states by the Constitution to control their own elections.

Power of Congress

Black traced to 1819 Supreme Court recognition of the power of Congress to regulate national elections.

He said if Congress could rearrange districts according to population and could supervise voting to prevent fraud, as the court has said, Congress certainly has the authority to permit 18-year-old citizens to vote in all federal elections.

"I would hold, as have a long line of decisions in this court, that Congress has ultimate superlative of Congress to over-see elections," Black said.

"Similarly," he said, "it is the prerogative of Congress to oversee the conduct of presidential and vice presidential elections and to set the qualifications for voters for electors for those offices. It cannot be seriously contended that Congress has less power over the conduct of presidential elections than it has over congressional elections."

But, Black said, while Congress has final authority over federal elections the states have the power to set voting qualifications for their own governments.

"No function is more essential to the separate and independent existence of the states and their governments," he said, "than the power to determine within the limits of the Constitution the qualifications of their own voters and the nature of their own machinery for filling local public offices."

Carnegie Award Presented

Appleton Hero Recognized

The rescue of a woman from the Fox River last summer has earned recognition of the Carnegie Commission in Pittsburgh, Pa., for an Appleton man.

The commission today announced the names of 24 persons in 13 states and two Canadian provinces who will receive bronze medals and will share in $11,000 in money grants for rescues involving extraordinary risks.

The Appleton man honored is John C. Haugner Sr., 44, 218 E. Marquette. He is credited with saving Arna T. Janssen, 56, Little Chute from drowning in an incident at Menasha last June 6.

When a motorboat in which she was riding in the Fox River went out of control and began drifting toward a dam, Mrs. Janssen, who could not swim, remained aboard while others jumped into the water and reached safely, the Carnegie citation said.

The boat went over the dam and Mrs. Janssen was thrown from the craft. She lost consciousness and was carried downstream by the strong current.

Haugner jumped into the water from atop a vertical wall at the bank and tried to swim to the woman, the citation stated. The current forced him downstream, but he intercepted Mrs. Janssen in seven feet of water about 40 feet from the bank.

Haugner turned her on her back and began towing her toward the bank. The current forced him further downstream and he began to tire, but he succeeded in reaching the wall where he secured a hold on a projection until further help arrived.

Mrs. Janssen was revived and has recovered.

Economy Altered

New Polish Chief Closer to Russia

WARSAW (AP) — Poland's new Communist leadership indicates it will revise the economic plan that spawned last week's rioting and will maintain total allegiance to Moscow.

Otherwise, its future course is unclear. Western observers consider the new party First Secre-

will have to reconsider carefully the problem of the economic plan for next year and for the whole five-year period."

The riots, he said, resulted from "inconsiderate concepts in economic policy. We will remove these." He said his administration will consult with "the working class and intelligentsia," adding:

"Recent events have reminded us in a painful manner this basic truth: that the party must always maintain a close link with the working class and the whole nation."

He said hostile forces cannot "lead us astray or return us from the road of Socialism. We are going together with the whole great Socialist community and chiefly with our tested friend and ally, the Soviet Union. This friendship and alliance we will continue to strengthen in fraternal and cordial cooperation."

Radio Warsaw said the party's Central Committee instructed the new regime to consider "possibilities for improving the material situation of low-wage families with many children, who, as a result of the change in prices, have suffered most severe losses in their budgets."

3-Year Hike In Living Costs Is 18 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A family of four living in a city needs 18 per cent more money to maintain the same standard of living it had in 1967, says the government.

Based on spring 1970 costs, a 6 per cent increase from the year before, a family of four must earn $8,960 for a low standard of living and $10,664 for an intermediate standard.

The report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Sunday did not include an additional 3 per cent cost increase since spring, which would raise the figures to $7,168 and $10,893.

Other government figures show more than half the nation's work force, some 45 million persons, average only $6,292 a year or less than the amount required for a low living standard.

Family Budgets — The government report said taxes accounted for 30 to 40 per cent of the increase in the different family budgets. The estimated cost of Social Security, disability insurance and personal income taxes was $1,064 for the low living standard and $1,920 for an intermediate budget.

The government said family living costs were lowest in small cities and the South, although budget costs varied widely among cities and regions.

In another development related to the nation's economy, Dr. Paul A. Samuelson said Sunday he believes new steps taken by the Nixon administration to cure inflation are working but more is needed.

The 1970 Nobel Prize winner in economics said Nixon passed up a chance early in 1969 to use his leadership to back up fiscal and monetary policy.

"You can't expect too much," he said. "But nothing was done."

Samuelson recommended compulsory arbitration of labor disputes that affect the public interest.

He appeared on NBC's radio-television program "Meet the Press."

Youth Charged in Fatal Fire

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Juvenile Court petitions alleging felony homicide and arson were filed today against a 16-year-old youth in a $2.5-million fire which killed 28 persons and injured 27 in a downtown hotel Sunday.

The youth was taken into custody near the scene of the early morning blaze, and questioned by police.

The petition identified him as Louis C. Taylor, four-time parolee from the State Industrial School for Boys.

Patrolman Claus Burgman said he arrested Taylor because he "was acting suspiciously and couldn't explain his presence in the building." Later, Burgman said Taylor said he was trying to rescue endangered guests.

Pima County Superior Court juvenile judge Ben Birdsall said Taylor "told us a number of different stories about the fire. He said he was at the scene and saw the fire start, but claims he saw another boy do it."

Volatile Substance — Several survivors of the flames which raced through the upper half of the 12-story Pioneer International Hotel said they had smelled a volatile substance in the corridors.

The fire in the 41-year-old building broke out on the sixth floor and flared through hallways and staircases, penning about 60 persons in their rooms with no way out except through the windows.

One woman plunged to her death from the seventh floor. "I'm still here—I'm still here," witnesses said she shouted shortly before making the fatal leap.

prominent northern Mexico citizens, including two grandchildren of former Sonora Gov. Ignacio Soto, the wife and five children of Francisco Luken, Sonora police chief, and Dr. Jose Jesus Antillon of Hermosillo, one of his country's top cardiologists.

Smoke in Rooms — Harold Steinfeld, 82, builder of the hotel and owner of a department store died with his wife Peggy in their penthouse apartment.

Many of the survivors said they awoke with smoke pouring into their rooms.

Dr. Lewis Beck of Rochester, N.Y., said the heat forced him out his sixth floor window and onto a ledge.

"I began to think I was going to die," he said.

"I figured a leap would kill me quickly. I wasn't going to be able to hold on much longer."

Then he saw a Casa Grande Ariz., physician, William Ford, shoeless and blackened with smoke, inching down a drainpipe. Beck joined him and both made it down to safety.

Two firemen were injured when a fire department ladder broke during the rescue attempts. Capt. Ellis Franklin hung upside down for 25 minutes on a broken 45-foot ladder before he could be rescued.

On the ground floor 650 persons attending three Christmas banquets were evacuated safely.

The hotel was sold by Steinfeld in 1963.

Asst. Fire Chief R. B. Slagel said construction of the building was completed in 1929 and it was not subject to building code safety changes made later.

Crime Rises 10 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime in the United States increased 10 per cent during the first nine months of this year compared with the same period in 1969, the FBI said today.

Robbery increased 15 per cent, murder 9 per cent, aggravated assault 7 per cent and forcible rape 2 per cent, the FBI said.

Armed robbery, which accounts for two-thirds of all robbery offenses, increased 18 per cent during the nine-month period, the FBI said, and aggravated assaults with firearms increased 10 per cent.

Among property crimes, larceny of $50 or more rose 14 per cent, burglary 9 per cent and auto theft 6 per cent, the report said.

Suburban areas recorded the largest crime increase—14 per cent, the report said, while crimes rose 9 per cent in rural areas and 6 per cent in cities of more than 250,000 population.

In a geographical breakdown, the FBI said Southern states reported a 14 per cent crime increase, North Central states a 10 per cent boost and Northern and Western states a 9 per cent hike.

Crime increases during the first three-quarters of previous years were 10 per cent in 1966, 16 per cent in 1967, 19 per cent in 1968 and 11 per cent in 1969.

General Worried About Aggression by Ally

Defense Against Russia Considered During World War II

LONDON (AP) — Ten months before D-Day, Allied military strategists discussed the possibility of repelling the Russians if they suddenly began overrunning Nazi Germany.

Gen. George C. Marshall, World War II U.S. chief of staff, asked his British counterpart in August 1943 if he thought Germany would help Allied troops enter Europe "to repel the Russians."

The quotation came from official minutes of the Combined Chiefs of Staff which were made public today in London and Washington.

Sir Alan Brooke, British chief of staff, told Marshall he had been thinking along similar lines. He said, however, that Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia did not think the Russians would try to sweep over Europe immediately.

Time to Recover

The British marshal quoted Dr. Benes as believing Soviet Russia would be bled so badly by the war that it would need a few years to get its economy going again.

Marshall commented in a meeting of the chiefs of staff that Russia was turning an "increasingly hostile eye on the capitalist world." The Russians, he said, were becoming increasingly contemptuous of their Western allies.

Although minutes of the meeting did not background the reasons, apparently the Russian view stemmed from Allied refusal to invade Europe as soon as Moscow would have liked.

Marshall also foresaw the troublesome plague the Western Allies would have in their relations with the Russians over zones of occupation in Germany. He suggested that planning officials of the Combined Chiefs of Staff study this problem, but there was no indication that this was ever carried out.

Early in the world conflict the Allies began to treat Russia with some caution. The combined Chiefs had technicians studying what weapons it could give Russia, what weapons and information it could not give the Russians and what the technicians were doubtful about.

The British chief of staff, while going along with Dr. Benes' view, told Marshall he

Obvious Result

Strategy against the Japanese discussed by the Combined Chiefs was based on the belief that Russia would not declare war against Japan, or if it did, then it would be so late the result would be obvious.

The major part of the records of meetings of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, a total of 100,000 documents, was made public today by the British and American governments.

Allied military leaders themselves fought running battles over strategy in Europe.

Time after time, the British sought to pull men and materiel out of the Pacific to strengthen the planned invasion of Europe but U.S. leaders stubbornly fought back—and won.

Gen. Henry "Hap" Arnold, then chief of the U.S. Army Air Corps, grew so incensed by poor U.S. bombing results from Britain to Europe that he threatened seven months before D-Day to stop the flow of bombers to Britain.

Backed by Marshall

Marshall backed him up.

In a long speech to the Combined Chiefs of Staff in December 1943, Arnold said U.S. planes in other areas put 60 to 70 per cent of their available bombers into the air for operations. The percentage in Britain, he declared, was only 50 per cent.

"There's no reason why they shouldn't send 70 per cent," he added.

Marshall agreed. He said that unless U.S. bombers out of Britain came up to the results of U.S. daylight bombers around the world there was no need for any huge force in Britain.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal of Britain made a spirited defense of Gen. Ira Eaker, head of the 8th Air Force, and told how difficult it was to get 2,000 bombers off the field for an operation.

No Reply

The U.S. leaders didn't reply. But, Portal, assailing a U.S. proposal to install a supreme air commander in Europe and the Mediterranean, told the Americans that either the Royal Air Force and the U.S. Air

Egypt Opens Aid Sessions In Soviet Union

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Soviet Union said today it is prepared to expand military and economic aid to Egypt.

A Kremlin communique said the pledge was made to Vice President Ali Sabry and other Egyptian visitors at a meeting in Moscow.

Sabry met in the Kremlin with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorniy.

Another round of talks was set for Tuesday. The Egyptians arrived in Moscow on Sunday.

Tass, reporting the arrival of Egyptians for an eight-day visit, said the Soviet government had pledged "to give all-round support to the U.A.R. in its struggle against Israeli imperialist aggression."

The Soviet news agency also reported that a senior Communist party emissary in Cairo had "reaffirmed the Soviet Union's steady resolve" to back the Egyptians. This tended to confirm predictions by diplomatic sources in Moscow that Sabry and his delegation will get pretty much what they want.

Informants in the Soviet capital said the Egyptians and the Russians would also discuss joint diplomatic action to cope

Agnew Says He Retains Nixon Support

Vice President 'Willing to Step Aside' if Asked

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says he is willing to step down in 1972 if a vice presidential candidate comes along with more political appeal, but that President Nixon "gives me every indication that he approves of the courses of action that I have taken."

Agnew made the statement in a copyrighted story by Akron Beacon Journal writers who talked to him more than an hour Friday in Akron after he spoke Thursday night at a testimonial dinner in Akron for outgoing U.S. Rep. William Ayres.

"As a matter of fact, anyone who thinks that a vice president is out in an off-year campaign solely on his own devices is just plain naive," Agnew said in the interview, which appeared in the newspaper's Sunday editions.

Not Insecure

Agnew said he has given no thought to plans for 1972 and added: "I'm not an insecure man. I don't worry from day to day whether the President is looking at me with a fishy eye."

Agnew said that he is considering new ways to increase his communication with the nation's youth after the 1970 election campaign "wiped out any chance for an atmosphere that was conducive to that type of effort."

"The distressing thing to me about contract with students is that it is impossible to go and speak to large numbers of students—at least it has been—and maybe this is going to change."

Campus Contacts

"But if you are not listened to if you are not allowed to be heard, and if you are simply the target of a demonstration or obstruction generated by a very small percentage of the students it is hard to make these contacts on campus," said Agnew.

He said the "leftist minority of students—the very militant minority—keep telling us that we're not listening. What they really mean is that we're not accepting the validity of their advice. We're listening and we're exercising our prerogatives as elected representatives of the people not to follow their suggestions because we don't think they are good suggestions."

Goodell Case

Agnew called Sen. Charles Goodell of New York, who lost his bid for reelection in November after being opposed by the Nixon Administration, "a unique case."

"He didn't always disagree, he made a career out of disagreeing," said Agnew. "He utilized his departures from the President as a cornerstone on which he built his constituency."

Agnew said Republican senators who bucked the administration and campaigned for Goodell need not fear reprisals when they run again. He said although the senators may have opposed the President on some matters, they "have also supported him at very critical times."

with the possibility of Israel's returning to the U.N. peace talks that have been dormant since September. U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring is to report to the Security Council Jan. 5 on the prospects for his mission to negotiate a Middle East peace settlement, and Arab diplomats in Moscow say they expect Israel to rejoin the talks before the end of January.

Israel left the talks after accusing Egypt of violating the cease-fire by moving Soviet anti-aircraft missiles closer to the Suez Canal.

The Israeli Cabinet met in Jerusalem Sunday and once again postponed its decision to return to the talks. An announcement said only that "a political discussion commenced and will continue at the next Cabinet session."

The Israeli government has indicated willingness to rejoin the talks, but is seeking certain U.S. military and political commitments before it does.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan met in Jerusalem with the chief U.N. truce observer, Maj. Gen. Ensio Silasvuo of Finland. Sources said they reportedly discussed the possibility of a cease-fire extension and an Israeli request that the United Nations press Egypt for the release of seriously wounded Israeli prisoners.

Arab saboteurs fired two rockets into a residential section of Jerusalem Sunday, and one exploded harmlessly in a vacant lot near an unfinished building that will become the residence of President Zalman Shazar. The second damaged a doctor's home 500 yards away, but no one was hurt.

Delegations from the Vatican and the Supreme Council of Islamic Affairs of Cairo met at Vatican City and issued a communique calling for "the re-establishment of a just and honorable peace in the Middle East."

The three-day meeting was the first between the two church groups. They agreed to make all possible efforts to increase good relations between Roman Catholics and Moslems and to consult each other regularly on Catholic-Moslem relations "on a social, cultural and spiritual level."

Brandt Party Convenes in West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — West German leaders of Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democratic party met in West Berlin today in defiance of East German harassment of road traffic to and from the beleaguered city.

It was the third day that the Communists had delayed traffic on the autobahns to signify their displeasure with the holding of a West German political meeting in West Berlin. Trucks and cars were held up for as much as nine hours.

The East Germans reacted in the same fashion when the Christian Democrats, Brandt's opposition met in West Berlin three weeks ago. The Communists claim that the city has no connection with West Germany, and West German political organs have no business here.

Protest by Allies

The Western allies protested the traffic slowdown after it began Saturday night, and the Russians and the East Germans protested the holding of the Socialist party meeting.

The East Germans apparently were having some effect on the Socialists. It was understood they had planned to meet for two days, but the agenda provided for only one day of discussions.

Members of the party in federal and state parliaments are attending the meeting. Brandt is not present, although he is coming to West Berlin Wednesday to spend Christmas at his home in the city. And Brandt's top party aide and floor leader in the Bundestag, Herbert Wehner, also stayed away. He was represented by his deputy, Karl Wienand.

The East German harassment of traffic continued for several days after the Christian Democratic meeting. It is expected that the slowdown will be similarly prolonged this week.

White House Service Conducted by Children

More State Workers Idle

Factory Closings Doubled

MADISON (AP)—The number of Wisconsin factories having had to close down in 1970 is more than twice the number of plants idled last year, the Division of Economic Development reports.

The division estimates there were more than 3,000 persons thrown out of work by the 25 industrial closings compared with 1,544 in 1969.

The division issued an annual report on factory expansions, but didn't disclose the number of plant closings until queried by newsmen.

The report said 375-400 Wisconsin plants were opened or expanded, compared with 492 in 1969.

Per capita income in the state increased 6.7 per cent in the first three quarters of 1970 compared with a national average of 6.6 per cent, the report said.

The report did not calculate the effects of the cost of living, which increased 5 1/2 per cent to 6 per cent in the same period.

Division spokesmen said the national economic situation was greatly responsible for the Wisconsin industrial closings.

Some of the state's major plant shut-downs include DuPont's Barksdale explosives plant with 215 employees, a Racine foundry with 167 workers, Koppers Co. of Peshtigo with 95, Northern Hardwoods of Butler with about 100, and an Algoma division of Massey-Ferguson with 250.

Others included a wood plant in Antigo and Standard Kollsman Industries of Oshkosh.

Sordid Airline Investment Cost Penn Central Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financially troubled Penn Central Railroad lost millions of dollars in an airlines venture a congressman says represents "one of the saddest and at times most sordid" chapters in American business history.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., made the comment Sunday in releasing a report by his House Banking Committee that showed Penn Central spent $21 million to start a worldwide air service now worth $2 million.

The report says $6 million was dumped into the Executive Jet Aviation Inc., in the last three years—when the railroad itself was facing bankruptcy and was under Civil Aeronautics Board orders to sell the subsidiary.

The report also includes testimony that the aviation company supplied women as dates for railroad officials in what appeared to be an effort to divert their attention from EJA's problems.

Undraped Women

It said EJA's founder, retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Albert F. Lassiter, chronicled his friendships with a variety of women in "hundreds of colored photographic prints and transparencies . . . many of which show undraped women."

The photographs were kept on the EJA premises, the report said.

Penn Central currently is in reorganization under the Bankruptcy Act and is seeking federal help to continue operating.

The report contends that Penn Central poured money into EJA for about five years, starting in 1964, despite continued EJA losses, doubts as to whether Penn Central could legally own stock in the company, and in the face of repeated recommendations that EJA's management be changed.

Major Responsibility

It assigns major responsibility for the EJA decisions to David Bevan, then chairman of the finance committee of the railroad. It says Bevan's actions in the face of EJA's deterioration might be linked "to the possibility that public revelation of certain personal activities" might have been "extremely embarrassing" to him.

The report says the railroad intended to develop EJA into an extensive air service, with emphasis on air cargo.

These plans, however, brought up the issue of Civil Aeronautics Board restrictions on railroads acquiring air carriers. The CAB refused in 1967 to let EJA acquire controlling interest in another airline when it found the company was funded by Penn Central.

CAB Order

It also handed down a cease-and-desist order in 1969 against the Penn Central-EJA operations and found 13 violations of the Federal Aviation Act. Penn Central was fined $65,000 and EJA $5,000, the report said.

EJA control currently is in litigation, the report said, and the company now is worth about $2 million.

The report also contains an account of a suit against EJA by J.W. Ricciardi of Miami for pay and expenses. Portions of depositions taken in connection with the suit are quoted in the report.

Ricciardi stated in his deposition that Lassiter offered him employment and asked him, among other things, to arrange female companionship for Bevan and Charles J. Hodge, another retired general who was an investment adviser to the railroad.

Bevan, Lassiter and Hodge have denied the allegations, the report said. Ricciardi's suit was settled for $13,000, it added.

Hospital Patient Dies After His Bed Burns

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A bed-ridden hospital patient died Sunday after his bedclothing caught fire, apparently while smoking.

Howard Blong, 57, died in a burn treatment center about nine hours after nurses discovered the fire.

Hospital spokesmen said the patient had been prohibited from having smoking materials unless a nurse was present, and that it wasn't determined how he had obtained them.

U.S. Bombing May be Justified, Heath Feels

WASHINGTON (AP) — If American troops need protection while withdrawing from South Vietnam, then bombing of the North would be justifiable, says British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

As for the likelihood of renewed bombing, Heath said President Nixon "is carrying out an honorable withdrawal and if in this process there is difficulty from North Vietnam, then he is bound to take action. He must do this to protect his forces," Heath said.

The prime minister made his comments on the CBS television-radio program, "Face the Nation." The interview program was taped last week for showing Sunday.

The United States withdrawal from South Vietnam must be orderly, Heath added. If it was in haste, "such a pullout would undermine confidence in the United States elsewhere" in Europe and Asia.

Explaining his meaning by "honorable withdrawal," Heath said South Vietnam should be left in a stable position. He said it need not be anti-Communist, but this is a question for the South Vietnamese to decide.

Paper Industry Replies to Charges

The American Paper Institute and Fox Valley area paper companies included in a report charging the industry isn't meeting its pollution abatement responsibilities have defended their efforts and suggest the report was narrow in its viewpoint.

The eight-month study said the 24 major paper companies are polluting the air and water of many states, including Wisconsin, at a staggering level.

Fox Valley area plants of Kimberly-Clark Corp., Consolidated Papers, Inc., American Can Co. and Hammermill Paper Co. were cited.

Spokesman of K-C, Consolidated and Hammermill, which has Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, as a division, said they were working to meet December, 1972 state abatement orders.

American Can's Neenah operation isn't a paper mill and apparently was cited in the report. However, the report noted inadequacies in its Green Bay and Rothschild operations.

The study was conducted by the Council on Economic Priorities, a nonprofit corporation founded last year to promote corporate responsibility. Its goal is to allow individuals and organizations to pressure businesses it believes aren't exercising proper responsibility in solving problems including pollution.

It studied 24 firms, including 17 mills in Wisconsin, for eight months. The report said that companies would have to spend about $750 million for the most effective equipment to cure pollution.

Edwin A. Locke, Jr., paper institute president, said the report was one-sided but added "there can be no question that every industry whose operations affect the environment have an obligation to keep pollution from its facilities to a practical minimum, and to work as rapidly toward this goal as economics and technology permit."

"The accuracy of some of the data contained in the report is open to question, but its shortcoming in this respect are less important than the narrowness of its viewpoint," Locke said. "The picture that the report presents of an industry standing separate from society around it and polluting the biosphere is so incomplete as to be misleading."

Efforts Ignored

He noted that, specifically, the report failed to note past industry expenditures for abatement and the trend of expenditures which would cause spending soon to exceed the outlays suggested in the report.

He also noted the report failed to recognize the complexity of the problem, including government policy and unemployment; time and engineering limitations, and the advancement resulting from group research financed by the pulp and paper industry.

The report said that Kimberly-Clark should be spending another $1 million each on its pulping plants at Kimberly and Niagara for additional secondary treatment. Its other three pulping mills outside of Wisconsin would be brought up to satisfactory pollution abatement standards, but not its two Wisconsin ones, the report said. A K-C spokesman said the report was basically favorable for K-C except for comments on the two plants. He noted that K-C plans to spend $4 million at Kimberly and $1.5 million at Niagara, and surely won't expend any more money until it sees the effectiveness of that degree of treatment.

Orders Cited

He said that would bring K-C into conformity with state standards. The firm is under a state order to make the improvements by 1972.

The council's report also noted Wisconsin government hasn't forced pulp mills to control their air pollution.

On the extra expenditure, a K-C spokesman said: "Honestly, Kimberly-Clark doesn't know whether secondary treatment is needed for either Wisconsin mills although the company has

Knowles Designates COG Clearinghouse

The Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) has been designated by the governor as the lone official clearinghouse to review all individual community applications for federal grants in the COG metropolitan region.

While its review and comment don't constitute veto power, there is a trend among federal and state agencies to rely on the review of a regional clearinghouse in making its final decision on whether to grant funding for projects.

Gov. Warren Knowles, in announcing the designation, said that since COG members' problems are mainly metropolitan in nature, "it is appropriate that the Fox Valley Council of Governments assume the basic clearinghouse responsibility relative to this area."

He lauded COG's "fine record of performance" and urged it to coordinate its clearinghouse activities with Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, COG and Northeastern have both reviewed grant applications and projects up to now.

Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, said that COG will expand its review activities in all projects, including sewer, water and solid waste disposal. Reviews are requested to assure state and federal agencies that a community's individual project conforms with the regional plan.

Boosts Delegates

"The importance of the designation is that it's a recognition of the COG delegates, who are top officials of each member municipality, for determining priorities and needs for this region," he said.

He noted that it strengthened the influence of COG and its delegates on the development of the region.

The governor was authorized to make the designation by the U. S. Bureau of the Budget, which is expected to officially recognize the Appleton-Oshkosh areas as metropolitan in the near future.

Gordon Bubolz, chairman of Northeastern, said in a statement that he hadn't received the governor's letter informing him of the designation but that Bruce Bishop, the governor's executive assistant, had informed him that only COG member communities were included for this designation.

"Bishop indicated that Northeastern has authority for communities within its nine-county area," he said.

Merger Talks Noted

Bubolz also noted that "there was no indication the present governor is aware of the fact that merger discussions are in progress at this time between committees of the council of governments and Northeastern." The first merger talks are slated for next month.

COG and Northeastern sent in their ideas on clearing house responsibilities several months ago when the governor was trying to determine which agency to designate.

Knowles noted that an overlap of jurisdictions, such as with COG and Northeastern both serving metropolitan areas in Outagamie and Winnebago counties, existed in the western part of the state.

There the basic responsibility was given to the metropolitan agency "while providing an opportunity for the broader regional agency to enter appropriate regional considerations through the metropolitan agency's clearinghouse process," Knowles wrote.

Some Problems

This is working, he said, and so it was appropriate to set up the same arrangement in the Fox Cities-Oshkosh area. However, he noted the basic organizational relationships between the two Appleton-based agencies still is unresolved. He said he hoped cooperation would prevail.

Knowles said that COG "clearly meets the basic criteria" for a clearinghouse. Knowles also had expressed concern about the duplication of the two agencies when contacted earlier about their ideas on clearinghouse setups.

Knowles said the state clearinghouse and the State Department of Local Affairs and Development have been instructed to work with COG in setting up arrangements.

In his letter to COG, he added: "Finally, I congratulate you on a fine record of performance and encourage the council to continue to plan for the social economic and physical development of the Fox Valley metropolitan area."

A Healthy Christmas For Debbie

Debbie a bright, charming and healthy 5-year-old, has made a successful recovery from primary tuberculosis.

It was realized in 1966 that the youngster, then 16-months-old, had tuberculosis. Her grandmother had been admitted to Riverview Sanatorium for the disease, and a routine check on the grandchild showed evidence of germs. After a chest X-Ray it was determined that Debbie had active childhood (primary) tuberculosis.

Treatment was begun immediately in the outpatient section of the sanatorium. She was brought there twice a week for intramuscular injections for one month and once a week for the second month. The injections were discontinued after the second month, and the oral medication, which was given

Lawmakers' Pension Plan Opposed

Expanded Session Predicted

MADISON (AP) — Republican dissidents in the Assembly are predicting there will be "tremendous pressure" Tuesday to expand Gov. Warren P. Knowles' special session into a reconsideration of bills he has vetoed.

A statement issued by a Republican legislator said he and other Assembly members are ready to battle what he predicted would be an effort to adopt a bill containing pensions for retiring lawmakers.

The Republican governor, who will be replaced Jan. 4 by Democrat Patrick J. Lucey, has directed lawmakers to meet just long enough to confirm 39 of his executive appointments before Democrats take over.

Knowles urged legislators not to take advantage of the special session by recalling themselves into a formal extension of the 1969 session, which adjourned last January.

But Harold Froehlich, Republican speaker of the Assembly, said legislators may enact a recall and act on some of the bills which the governor vetoed.

Rep. James Sensenbrenner Jr. of Shorewood said Sunday night that he and at least two other Republican members of the Assembly, James N. Azim Jr. of Muskego and Kenneth J. Merk of Brookfield, will oppose any recall effort.

"Executive vetoes and other important questions of public policy should not be decided by a lame-duck legislature," Sensenbrenner declared in a statement which he said had the blessings of Azim and Merk.

Oshkosh Gets New Postmaster

OSHKOSH — Clarence W. Spaulding has been appointed postmaster her it was announced today by Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

Spaulding, 54, a lifelong resident of Oshkosh, is a graduate of Oshkosh High School. He is a U. S. Army veteran of World War II.

He joined the U. S. Postal Service in 1940 as a substitute clerk at Oshkosh. He has held positions as a regular clerk, clerk in charge, assistant postmaster and was named assistant postmaster in charge in May 1968.

The statement predicted "lawmakers will face tremendous pressure to recall themselves to override Knowles' veto of a pension bill."

"We cannot justify the legislature rushing into a post-election session to increase its own pensions," the statement said. The governor has said that, if the Senate confines itself to acting on his 39 appointments, the special session can be wrapped up in less than two days.

Knowles' special-session directive limits action to the nominee business. A majority of legislators' votes would be required on a petition to recall the 1969 session.

"We shall not sign a recall petition," Sensenbrenner's statement said. His challenge to Froehlich's talk about a recall marks the second time in a month that Republican lawmakers have rebelled against their speaker, who will be replaced by Democrat Robert Huber when Democrats take command of the Assembly next month.

Azim blamed Froehlich policies for having cost Republicans their control of the Assembly in the Nov. 3 elections, and attempted about four weeks ago to defeat Froehlich when the party was selecting its Assembly minority leader for 1971.

Voters turned 20 Republicans out of Assembly office, and gave Democrats a powerful 67-33 control of the lower house.

Sensenbrenner backed Azim's bid. But Froehlich defeated Azim's challenge 29-4, declaring the vote to be evidence that the bulk of the GOP bloc in the 1971 Assembly would be strongly behind him.

Azim called himself a "Knowles Republican."

Froehlich said legislators may wish to consider several of the 33 bills vetoed by Knowles. Two of them are Senate bills.

Another Republican, Sen. Reuben LaFave, said he may balk at voting for the governor's nominees unless action is taken on a bill which would have set aside 35 per cent of liquor tax revenue for revenue programs.

Sensenbrenner's statement said pressure for a recalled session is likely to appear in both Senate and Assembly.

"We will not become parties to such an action, which is contrary to the public interest," the statement said.

Snowmobile Hit By Car, Man Dies

A 34-year-old Appleton man was killed Sunday night when the snowmobile he was riding was struck by an automobile south of Black Creek on Outagamie County Trunk A.

The victim was identified as Donald L. Glaser, 34, of 3133 N. Ballard Road.

County police said that Glaser was turning right into the driveway of the Cork and Dine Restaurant, 4 1/2 miles south of Black Creek, when his machine apparently stalled. A northbound automobile, driven by La Vern E. Stickney, 40, of 2307 S. Lawe St., Appleton, struck Glaser in the northbound lane of the road. Glaser's body was apparently thrown or carried 257 feet by the impact.

Police said Glaser was in a party of five snowmobilers but that the others had parked their machines in the lot of the restaurant prior to the accident. Glaser was dead on arrival at Appleton Memorial Hospital.

Stickney, who skidded over 350 feet before striking the machine, told authorities he saw no lights on the machine. The snowmobile seemed to come out of nowhere, he said.

Glaser's death raised Outagamie County's 1970 traffic toll to 18, compared with 17 all of the last year. Funeral arrangements will be held at the Wichmann Funeral Home.

The deaths of five persons in weekend accidents and another early today have raised the state's 1970 traffic toll to 1,095, compared with 1,022 on this date a year ago.

John Halleran of Pittsburgh, Pa., was killed early today when his semi-truck left Interstate 94 in Waukesha County and plunged down an embankment. A passenger was hospitalized at Oconomowoc.

Mrs. Anthony Kotecki, 41, a rural Thorp mother of 10, was fatally injured Sunday in a collision at a town road intersection near Thorp.

A Merrill girl, Gail Zastrow, 19, was killed Saturday night when she and two companions were struck by a car as they walked along U.S. 51 north of Merrill. Her two companions were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Theodore Uminski, 77, of Racine died Saturday night when struck by a car on a rural Racine road.

An Ashland youth, Randolph Roffers, 19, was killed Saturday when struck by a car on a road south of Ashland.

Azel Morris, 50, of Elkhorn died Sunday of injuries received Dec. 12 in a Walworth County accident that also claimed the life of his wife.

Engineers List Reasons For Leaky Erb Park Pool

An engineering study of Appleton's Erb Park swimming pool blames underground soil and water conditions and even nearby elm trees for making the pool shift, crack and leak.

Warzyn Engineering and Service Co., Inc., Madison, studied the pool and surrounding soil and water conditions last summer on request of the Parks and Recreation Commission, in an attempt to find out what causes the perennial problems at the pool and to find remedies.

Solutions suggested by the engineers range from more effective sealing and calking to leaving the pool partly filled with water in the winter.

Installing a plastic liner "would probably be necessary to overcome the leakage problem entirely," the report says. But the cost and practicality make that solution questionable in the engineers' opinion.

They also voiced the view that their findings "hopefully alleviated any fears of imminent collapse," saying they found nothing in the subsol studies to indicate any safety hazards.

The commission was concerned over the possibility of danger in the pool's structural condition.

But the leakage and cracking also have created costly repair and maintenance problems, and the water bill for keeping the pool filled adds to the costs.

The Warzyn study found a combination of the types of soil and the rising, falling and freezing of underground water levels probably explain the leakage, which occurs primarily during the dry months of late-summer.

Tough doubting that underground water leaks into the pool when ground-water is high, the engineers said low ground-water apparently increases the leakage rate.

The problem, they added, is "probably compounded by the enormous water demands of the trees about the circumference of the pool."

A study in Menasha in 1965 showed houses settled as a direct result of "soil shrinkage caused by the water demands of trees adjacent to various structures," the engineers said.

There are 12 elms surrounding the pool. "Although somewhat approximate, our information indicates that mature elm trees may consume anywhere from two to 20 barrels of water per day," depending on leaf area, root pattern and other factors, the report said.

Roger Rindt, park superintendent and city forester, challenged the 20-barrel figure when the report was discussed by commissioners last week.

More Information

The engineers recommended gathering "more authoritative" information before considering removing trees, adding they advise against that measure "for aesthetic reasons."

While confirming that bands of wet sand exist under the pool, adding to the ability of the subsol to absorb water, the engineers reported that "contrary to earlier opinions no quicksand conditions nor a subterranean stream were encountered."

Adams Vetoes Referral Action In Menasha

Council Decision
On Grievance Issue
Rejected by Mayor

MENASHA — Mayor James Adams has promulgated his first official veto of a common council action.

The veto was over a council action last Tuesday, referring a grievance action by the public safety committee back to that committee.

"If the members of the common council see fit to override the decision of the public safety committee," Adams wrote in his veto message sent out at 5 p.m. Friday, "it would be my further recommendation that all committees be eliminated and referred directly to the common council. In essence, the majority vote on December 15th (5-2) implied no confidence in the actions and judgement of the members of the public safety committee," he continued.

Council Intent

"I am sure that this was not the intent of the common council."

Adams thus comes out in direct opposition to Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker, who spearheaded the effort to have the matter referred back to public safety because he felt the grievance, involving a fireman, should be taken up in negotiations with the firemen's union. Parker is the city's chief negotiator.

Voting along with Parker Tuesday were Aids. William Erickson, Ernest Koerner, Erwin Rooks and Raymond Zielinski.

Voting "no" at the lightly attended council session were public safety committee members Aids. Andrew (Bud) DeLeeuw and Robert Winarski.

The grievance is this: National Guard Firemen Patrick O'Brien was injured while serving with the National Guard at Camp McCoy in late July.

Under present city ordinance, according to City Atty. Richard Stevens, an injury during off-duty (city employment) periods means a city employee cannot get sick pay compensation. O'Brien was gone from city employment for about seven weeks due to his injury.

But O'Brien, whose request to Fire Chief Cornelius Rippl for sick leave pay was turned down, took the matter to the public safety committee for two hearings. He was accompanied by an attorney.

The public safety committee ruled that O'Brien should get the sick pay. No one knows exactly how much that is, yet. But the committee felt that service in the National Guard did not qualify as an "off-duty" job.

Neenah Overpass Waits Aid

NEENAH — State highway engineers are checking to see if Breezewood Lane can be put on the federal road system so federal money can be funneled into the railroad overpass project to relieve the local financial commitment.

The city has agreed to go along with the extending Breezewood to Bell and County Trunk A, including a railroad overpass but Town of Neenah officials have been reluctant to commit their municipality to a share of the $700,000 project.

Annual Meeting
Birt Oberlies, Town of Neenah board member, said, "I don't think the town board is legally qualified to commit the money and even if it was, I don't think it would without taking it to an annual meeting first."

Clem Mertens, Green Bay, a state highway engineer, said efforts were underway to see if the street could be designated as a part of the Federal Aid Secondary (FAS) system.

If the Federal Bureau of Roads would go along with the designation, then there is a possibility of federal aid picking up half the construction cost.

In 1973, the state is planning construction of an interchange over U.S. 41 at Breezewood Lane.

Mertens pointed out that if the FAS designation comes through, then federal funds might be available from a reverted fund in that year.

"We're not sure if we'll have the money at that time. This is one of the things we're checking besides trying to get the FAS designation," he said.

Oberlies, who said he thinks the project would aid industrial development in the town, added quickly that without town sewer and water facilities, any development would quickly annex to the city.

"Right now we don't have much to offer industry," he said.

However, the town is approaching the final stages of getting petitions prepared for a town sanitary district, which then would give the town something to offer developers without leaving annexation as the only answer to sewer and water services.

Mertens, pointing out that the town was reluctant to commit the money toward the railroad overpass project, said "We think maybe federal aids would reduce the amount of local money and enable the town to afford to go along with the project."

Although FAS funds are distributed by county highway committees, the state highway commission has what it calls reverted funds, the money

Mertens thinks money from this fund could be used to pay half the cost. "Of course, this is a decision which must be made by the commission," he said.

The project, as proposed by the commission, includes elevating Breezewood to the 23½-foot level, the required clearance for railroads, then slowly dropping down to grade and building a four-lane street all the way to County Trunk A.

From the engineers' standpoint, including Wayne Bryan, Neenah public works director, the best time to complete the overpass is the same time the state is constructing the U.S. 41 overpass.

The town, however, is not going to commit itself, according to Oberlies, the residents have a chance to voice their opinion at the annual meeting this spring.

Meanwhile the state is checking on ways to reduce the town and city share of the project through federal aids.

Ambulance Accident Proves Good Therapy

OTHMARSINGEN, Switzerland (AP) — An ambulance rushing a premature baby with breathing trouble to a hospital veered off an icy road near here over the weekend throwing the driver, the nurse and the incubator carrying the baby to the ground.

Police said nobody was hurt but the baby has been breathing normally ever since.

Winneconne Hassle

Three on School Board Face Recall Petitions

WINNECONNE — A special meeting of the Winneconne board of education will be held at 7 p.m. tonight, three days after recall petitions were filed against three board members.

When contacted this morning the clerk, Robert Schueler declined to comment on the issue except to say that the board would probably direct him at tonight's meeting. Supt. Jann Peterson also declined to comment this morning on what action the board will take.

One Resigned

The petitions asked for the recall of George Tipler, who resigned from the board a week ago; Gerard Eisch and George Dobberke, all long-time veterans of the board.

Some 1,560 signatures were on the three petitions (more than 500 on each one) and the organizers of the petitions feel there are enough names to force a recall election. If the petitions are in order, the election must be held in period of 40-45 days.

The recall of Eisch and Dobberke is only the first step the Winneconne Taxpayers Association (currently in the formation stages) apparently plans to take to overhaul the present school board.

Schueler and Andrew Blaauw (who was named the new president in place of Tipler a week ago) have both been on the board for less than a year, and thus, under state law, cannot be recalled.

The three-year term of Floyd Davis expires in July and the Association could be expected to put up its own man then. Tipler's term also expires in July, and if the board appoints a new member to fill the position of Tipler before July, that person will still have to run for election, and will probably be opposed by a person backed by the Association.

Stork Gets Pushed for Christmas

NEENAH — There are no limits to planning women will do for a family Christmas at home.

In the most exclusively female place in the Twin Cities, Theda Clark Hospital's maternity ward, the Christmas rush was last week. The crush to have babies isn't as great as last-minute shopping downtown, but there are a few more mothers than usual choosing to have babies and be home in time for Christmas.

Chief obstetric nurse Mrs. Marjorie Panzenhagen said they were medically ready to give birth and decided with their doctors to have labor induced. A few others scheduled Caesarean sections for the time.

"Then I can be home with my five others for Christmas," one of the planners said.

Mrs. Thomas Johnson, 611 Henry Street, Neenah, chose to induce her second child, a 6-pound 8 ounce boy last week. "There were five of us in labor at the same time, two were induced."

She'll be home for Christmas, and her doctor will be able to get away for a short Christmas skiing trip.

consensus on some costs, but greatly differed on others. Board members agreed that they didn't want to cut anything that would hurt the district's educational program.

William Platt, chairman of the committee, said he wasn't against modifying a program, however.

Richard Kichefski said that his feeling was that "to weaken a program, in my estimation, is the same as cutting it."

Platt said he didn't know whether the board could come up with the money recently cut by the fiscal control ($92,000), but he said if there is a possibility the board could find a portion of that amount, then it should do so.

Supt. Alan Osterndorf explained this morning the difficulty in finding any cuts.

"The initial budget was sound and to subtract from that is a pretty difficult proposition," he said.

But he said the budget review committee will have to meet again to determine which direction it will take in regards to coming up with a $2.9 million budget.

Close School
One suggestion Saturday was to leave the planned proposals as they have been, and then to close school when the money was gone, and to budget the needed funds in the 1972 budget and to extend school in June, thus making up for the lost time.

"I think someplace along the line people have to realize that Menasha is an efficient system and a good system," Robert Farrell said.

"We're running a good show here. We should be cooperative, but firm. If we run out of dough, then we run out of dough," he said.

Platt said the committee should be able to make some strides in the area of reductions.

"Maybe you don't come up with it all," he said and added that he didn't want the youngsters to have to pay the bill.

Driving Advice Given For The Foggy Season

CHICAGO — From late fall through early winter is fog's prime time, and this calls for extra care on the part of motorists.

According to an article, "The Curtain That Kills," in the current issue of Family Safety magazine, published by the National Safety Council, it is the unpredictability of fog that makes it a killer. Meteorologists say that fog, caused when cool, dense air aloft traps damp air closer to the earth, is one of the most difficult of natural phenomena to predict.

"In this day of fast-moving, congested, expressway traffic, fog poses its greatest threat to human life," the article says.

Three to be Sentenced for Tavern Fracas

Three Seymour men will face Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren Jan. 4 for sentencing. Their convictions of five misdemeanors had been stayed pending an appeal that was denied last week.

The district attorney's office set the January day for sentencing after the guilty verdicts for Orville Gagnow, 43, his son Larry, 23, and the owner of the Pine Castle Ballroom, Francis Coonen, were reinstated Wednesday.

Their arrests stem from a fracas last July 25 at the Pine Castle, where a wedding reception was held for Larry. Orville Gagnow was charged with obstructing an officer; Larry, with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest, and Coonen, with two counts of selling beer to minors. William Knutson, a county sheriff's deputy, was working at the establishment alone the night of the incident.

On Sept. 24, Van Susteren set aside the guilty verdicts of the jury which heard the men's trial. That ruling was appealed to the Circuit Court, and last week Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell reversed it.

Meeting Canceled at Congregational Church

The congregational meeting of First Congregational United Church of Christ, which had been set for Sunday, has been canceled.

Another meeting to consider the church by-laws will be called at a future date, John Menn, moderator, has announced.

3 Shopping Days Till Christmas

Because fog is so unpredictable, the driver must know what to do when he unexpectedly drives onto a patch of it. The first thing to do is to slow down; don't panic and slam on brakes, says the article. To do so can cause a chain collision—the multiple accident in which vehicles plunge into the white shroud and ram the pileup ahead or skid in wild evasive action and are struck by other vehicles.

Other Tips

Besides slowing down the article offers other tips for driving in fog:

- Switch headlights to low. This will greatly reduce the blinding reflection from your own headlights.
- Occasionally flick your headlights to the high beam for a second or two as a warning to oncoming cars.
- Turn on your windshield wipers and defroster fan.
- Reduce speed as fog increases. If visibility gets too poor, pull off the road; keep on your parking lights and emergency flasher.

The best thing to do when encountering fog while driving is not to drive any more, the article says. "The chain collision is not the only fog danger. The driver who persists in traveling half blind runs the risk of striking a pedestrian, another vehicle, or a bridge abutment or fixed object — or he may simply run off the road and into a ditch or over a bluff."

Man Complains He Was Robbed

An Appleton man complained to police that he was robbed early today by two men from whom he had accepted a ride.

Ken Tabor, 425 W. Commercial St., told authorities he rode with the two men from the Country Aire Club, 2311 W. Spencer St. They were supposedly en route to a party.

In the 2200 block of N. Richmond Street about 1:15 a.m. Tabor related, one of the strangers told him to get out of the car, described as a four-door brown Chevrolet. Tabor did, he said, and one of the men struck him. Still conscious, he felt for his wallet and noticed it missing from a back trouser pocket. The billfold contained $1 and an identification card.

Tabor said the pair said nothing prior to the incident. He described one man as short, with brown hair. The other was heavy set and wore glasses, he said.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the year ending December 31, 1968, or other taxable year. Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) I took a loss on some stock shares I sold this year. Is there any change in the way I handle this for tax purposes?

A) Yes, the Tax Reform Act of 1969 made changes in the treatment of capital losses. Capital losses continue to be deductible and can be used to offset capital gains. In addition, capital losses can be used to offset other income up to a maximum of $1,000 a year.

However, while short term capital losses are fully deductible from ordinary income only one half of net long term losses are deductible. For example, if your net long term capital loss is $1,000 and there are no other gains or losses, then half of it or $500 can be used to offset your other income.

Q) My dentist is doing some bridgework for me. Can I deduct the full cost on my 1970 return?

A) Dental expenses are subject to the same provisions as medical expenses. The total of the expenses that qualify may be deducted to the extent it exceeds 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

Include dental expenses only if they were paid in your 1970 tax year. If the expenses come to $350, but you paid only $175 of that in 1970, just list the $175 when adding up medical and dental costs.

Q) My income will be lower than I expected this year, and I don't think I'll have any additional tax to pay. Can I just forget about my next estimated tax payment?

A) If you now estimate that you will have no additional tax to pay when you file your 1970 return, it is not necessary to make further estimated tax payments for 1970. Use your estimated tax worksheet to figure out the revised amount of tax liability and whether this will be met without making an estimated tax payment as scheduled in January.

Q) If I pay someone to take care of my baby while I'm working can I deduct the cost?

A) This may qualify as a child care expense. In that case you may deduct up to $600 of the amount you spend for the care of a dependent while you are working or looking for work. The deduction is raised to $900 when care is paid for two or more dependents.

Note that tax law limits the deduction when the combined income of a working couple is over $6,000. Then the deduction is reduced by the amount their income exceeds $6,000. This and other rules are explained in Publication 503, Child Care and Disabled Dependent Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care, available free from your IRS District Office.

Arraignment On Robbery Count Held

An 18-year-old runaway from the Wisconsin School for Boys at Wales appeared in court this morning to face a robbery charge for which a 19-year-old rural Seymour youth was sentenced to six months in the county jail earlier this month.

Marvin Skenandore, 18, route 3, Seymour was found indigent. Outagamie County Judge Nick

Monday, December 21, 1970 The Post-Crescent B 4

F. Schaefer, who appointed an attorney at county expense, remanded Skenandore to the county jail on $1,500 bond. Further proceedings will be Tuesday afternoon.

Outagamie investigators took Skenandore, who ran away from Wales Dec. 5, into custody early Sunday morning on Main Street in Seymour. Seymour police report that they stopped a car shortly after 3 a.m. and that a youth identified as Skenandore fled from it. Investigators made the arrest on a warrant. Skenandore is charged with the Sept. 6 robbery of Alvin Dickson, 40, Seymour whose billfold containing $10, two cigarette lighters and a watch were allegedly taken in the Town of Oneida.

Investigators said that Dickson was beaten during the robbery and that he was left apparently unconscious by his assailants. He sought medical assistance after crawling back to State 54 near Seymour.

Another man was implicated, but he is in the military service, and according to authorities, cannot be charged.

Russians Worried U.S. During War

Corps should be led by a combined staff, or one service had to be subservient to the other.

Portal said he was not prepared to recommend that the Royal Air Force be under U.S. Air Corps direction.

The Combined Chiefs of Staff was created by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill during a meeting in Washington a month after Pearl Harbor. It ran the global military operations of the Western allies until after the victory over Japan and was disbanded in 1947.

The British Public Records Office released 80 volumes of minutes of CCS meetings along with thousands of related items, a total of about 100,000 documents. Only the records up to Dec. 31, 1945, were released today; the rest will be made public later. And many documents of the 1942-45 period were withheld for security reasons.

Previous Releases

It was believed that the documents released today contained little if any important information that has not already appeared in the flood of memoirs by the war leaders.

Records of a meeting on June 29, 1944, tell of British opposition to the landing in Southern France which the Americans wanted to take pressure off Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower's invasion forces in Northern France.

Adm Sir Percy Noble said allied strategy must be "the use of maximum force wherever the enemy can be induced to fight." This meant, he argued, that the British-commanded drive up Italy was of vital importance in the effort to crush the Nazi war machine.

Noble plugged for a drive through the Balkans instead of the invasion of Southern France, backing Churchill's plea to attack "the soft underbelly" of Axis Europe.

British military commanders and statesmen—and some Americans—still claim the Communists would not have captured much of the Balkan countries if the British advice had been heeded.

But both Gen George Marshall and Adm. Ernest King stonewalled against the argument, and they carried their reluctant allies with them.

Girl, 6, Winning Fight for Life

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Little Karyn Prestwich will open her Christmas presents Friday in a hospital bed, and she'll eat the traditional turkey dinner with her family in a hospital cafeteria.

Despite the antiseptic surroundings, Karyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Prestwich, say it will be the happiest Christmas their family has ever spent.

Their 6-year-old daughter is apparently winning a struggle for life which began when she was mistaken for a deer Nov. 6 on a rural highway near her home in North Fork, Idaho.

Blonde, blue-eyed Karyn, who started first grade in September, was waiting for her school bus when she was struck in the stomach by a rifle bullet.

Taken to a Salmon, Idaho, hospital and later transferred to the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City, she remained in critical condition for almost a month with badly damaged kidneys.

The doctors who treated her said the little girl made an extraordinarily determined fight for life.

Another Month

"It's taken quite a while for her to bounce back," said her mother, "and it will be at least another month before she can be released."

"She's getting terribly bored and keeps asking to get out so she can go back to school, which she loves."

Mrs. Prestwich, who has maintained a day-and-night vigil by Karen's bedside since the accident, said her husband, a U.S. Forest Service employee, and two other children would come to Salt Lake City this week to spend the Christmas holidays.

Her daughter's greatest unhappiness during her long hospital stay has been the prolonged separation from her two sisters, Carrie, 3, and Jenny, 1, Mrs. Prestwich added.

Many Gifts

Karyn has "received many gifts, including a doll sent by Roy C. Wells, 52, of Torrance, Calif., who was charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting."

"She keeps telling me that she thinks he is a very nice man," Mrs. Prestwich said. "She's glad he still thinks about her."

"The man didn't mean to shoot me," Karyn told the doctor who first treated her. "He thought I was a deer."

Wells, who was hunting at the time of the accident, has pleaded innocent to the assault charged and guilty to a charge of careless use of firearms.

He has contributed $500 to the Karyn Prestwich fund, which has been set up at a Salmon bank for donations to help pay for Karyn's skyrocketing medical expenses.

Fund at $7,000

The fund now has $7,000. Fund-raising campaigns were started by residents of several small Idaho towns near North

162 Enemy Troop Dead Claimed for Weekend

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces today claimed killing 162 enemy troops in a weekend of stepped up action before the Christmas cease-fires.

The U.S. Command said one American was killed and six were wounded in ground clashes, while four were killed and 21 injured in the crashes during the weekend of four helicopters. An Air Force F4 Phantom also went down in the Plain of Jars, in Laos, but the two fliers were rescued unharmed.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported one government soldier killed and 10 wounded in the ground fighting and said their over-all casualties from rocket and mortar attacks were "light."

More than a dozen clashes were reported Saturday and Sunday, ranging from the U Minh forest deep in the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone. Most of them were small in scale, but 31 enemy were reported killed in the U Minh forest Sunday.

The Communist forces observing the 10th anniversary of their National Liberation Front, made 27 rocket and mortar attacks against allied bases and positions between Saturday night and this morning, spokesmen said.

The U.S. Command said two American positions were hit by shelling early today, the big air base at Da Nang and the headquarters of the 5th Marine Regiment 20 miles to the south. A spokesman said there were no casualties or damage, but it was the first time the Da Nang air base had been shelled in two months.

Okinawa Cools After Mob Riots, 'Invades' U.S. Base

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — U.S. military authorities today eased security precautions ordered after an Okinawan mob invaded the big Kadena Air Base with fire bombs, rocks and empty bottles.

Americans were again allowed to drive through the town of Koza, outside the base, but still were not allowed to get out of their cars. The town had been put out of bounds after the riot early Sunday.

The riot was touched off when a U.S. serviceman's car hit and slightly injured an Okinawan pedestrian. The rioters burned 82 parked cars and a guard post and damaged a new school building on the base. They were driven out after four hours by 1,300 U.S. troops and Okinawan police firing tear gas and warning shots.

U.S. officials said 35 persons were treated for burns and bruises at the base hospital, including 29 U.S. military police. Okinawan police said 26 other persons were injured and 19 Okinawans were arrested.

Okinawans claimed 5,000 persons participated in the riot, but U.S. officials estimated 800 in the mob.

Chobyo Yara, chief executive of the Ryukyu government, said he believed the rioting had its roots in a U.S. military court's acquittal three weeks ago of a serviceman whose car killed an Okinawan and also in Okinawans' anger at the delay in the withdrawal of U.S. nerve gas from the island bases.

The U.S. Defense Department announced Dec. 4 that it would remove the 13,000-ton stockpile of mustard and nerve gas to Johnson Island as soon as possible, but no date for the first shipment has been set. Lt. Gen. James P. Lampert, the U.S. high commissioner for the Ryukys, said in a broadcast Sunday he would not issue orders to withdraw the gas as long as disorders persist.

Officials Meet

In Tokyo, U.S. and Japanese officials met at a routine security consultative conference, and Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi said his government would seek U.S. assurances that effective measures would be taken to prevent more rioting in Okinawa. He said he hoped the incident would not adversely affect the scheduled return of the Ryukyus to Japan in 1972.

Army Spying Tied To Riot by Agent

DETROIT (AP) — A former Army intelligence agent says the service greatly expanded domestic spying after the Detroit riot of 1967 exposed gaps in its knowledge of possible civil dissenters.

In a telephone interview quoted by the Detroit Free Press, Ralph M. Stein, an ex-agent living in Flushing, N.Y., said that prior to this riot "the Army had only a few people in Washington monitoring newspapers and reports."

Stein said that in 1967-68 he was in charge of the Army intelligence "left-wing desk" in Washington, a national collection point for information about radical activity.

The Detroit riot "came as a surprise," he said, "and the intelligence officers got uptight because they were unable to answer all the questions of the generals."

Stein said his superiors in Army intelligence "were very conspiracy-oriented. They felt like if they could just find out who organized the riots and who ran them, then they might be able to stop them."

Open Line

During the riot, Stein said, he had an open line to the 113th Military Intelligence group, the Army's Detroit intelligence branch.

"They were sending every bit of information they could," he said. "Including the number of drunks arrested."

After the riot, Stein said, two other desks were added, one for right-wing activity and another for racial matters. He said the size of the section was increased from three men to 15.

SDS Infiltrated

"The SDS was definitely infiltrated by the FBI," he said. "Most of our reports on the SDS were forwarded to us by the FBI, classified either confidential or secret."

"Some of the reports were from public meetings, but others were from persons on the inside circle, or a penetrator. The source would be cited as 'Ann Arbor T-1' or 'B-6' or something like that."

Is There Still Room or Reason Left for Faith?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Modern man, schooled, skilled and purportedly "come to age" to change his own destiny, often has doubts about God.

To an extent, this has always been so. "Truly," said the prophet Isaiah, "Thou art a God who hidest thyself."

But today, in the enveloping sweep of technocracy and surging physical sciences that enormously magnify the mind and powers of man himself, the veil around Him hangs heavier.

It's harder to notice much else, now that "moon dust" turns out to be only dust and chemicals replace prayer to increase crops and cure illness. Is there still room or reason left for God?

That, as many thinkers see it, has become the underlying religious challenge of the age. "The reality of God has now become the central theological problem," says Methodist theologian Shubert M. Ogden.

Behind Tinsel

In the Christmas season, marking an event regarded by Christians as God's fullest manifestation among men, the issue persists behind the bright tinsel and festivities.

"Consciously and unconsciously, openly and under camouflage, mankind today is moved by the question of God as never before," says Roman Catholic scholar William H. Van de Pol.

It is as if the divine had been "crowded out" of everyday experience, he says, by man's overwhelming technical accomplishments in deducing, defining and dealing with reality, subtly discounting any of its other aspects.

In such an atmosphere, absorbed in precision systems, data analysis and the achievements of human intellect in mastering nature's secrets, men almost automatically tend to make their estimate of God in those terms.

Is There Evidence

By that predominating standard, is there any evidence of God?

It is available in abundance. And its "factual and intellectual basis is just as broad and adroit as the factual and intellectual basis" of scientific concepts, says noted nuclear physicist and Episcopal priest William G. Pollard.

Some of it also is highly abstract, as foggy to the ordinary believer as Einstein's relativity equations, which also are based on reasoned probabilities and faith, as is all scientific advance.

Nevertheless, a vast and varied store of logic has accumulated behind the thesis of God. Although seeking to ascertain the divine through human knowledge has been shunned by many religious scholars in recent times, on the ground that it tends to reduce God erroneously to man's own capabilities, others lately have insisted that the approach, while only partial, is essential in the modern climate of life.

Arid Intellectualism

However bad "some arid intellectualism" has been in pursuing religious truth, "anti-intellectualism is worse, since it provides no antidote to either superstition or wish-thinking," says Quaker philosopher Elton Trueblood.

Scores of so-called "proofs"—a relative term in any field—have been advanced.

Most of the commonly known arguments find their evidence in four categories, namely: ontological—based on modes of being, cosmological—based on the cosmos, moral—concerning ethical sensibility and teleological—dealing with purpose.

Here is a tightly captioned sketch of the simpler lines of reasoning.

Beyond Him

ONTOLOGICAL: Unlike other life, man alone realizes the limits of his being, and by the very fact that he does so, transcends it in awareness of potential infinity, which is thus in him yet also beyond him.

This is an immediately experienced, existential pointer to God.

It leaves man with a latent, yet always present anxiety about his end of being, not just about dying, but about having to die, to be no more. He can know of this threatened "nonbeing" only by looking at it from a perspective surpassing it, from a viewpoint of possible infinity.

Because of the uneasy conflict between man's limited "being" and the demand within him for unlimited "being," he is estranged from his own situation, belonging in elemental awareness to an infinite "ground of being"—God.

Present Status

The late great theologian Paul Tillich notes that if man's biological actuality matched his conscious awareness, he would never even ask about God, nor would he be able to receive divine revelation. But as it is, his awareness transcends his present status.

COSMOLOGICAL: Based strictly on reasoning, the validity of these deductions has rarely been challenged, but they have been disregarded by many lately because the seem to portray God as chiefly in the remote past, in a mechanistic way, rather than as continuously involved in life.

Voluminously elaborated through the centuries, they were most notably systematized by the 13th century thinker Thomas Aquinas in his famous "Five ways" of demonstrating God's existence. He himself conceded they don't show divine character, only the fact of God's existence. Briefly, they are:

Cause and Effect

—Since everything conceivable was caused by something else before it, if this chain of cause and effect could be traced back to its beginning, there must have been a first "uncaused cause"—God.

—Similarly, since every movement or change requires a prior movement to produce it, there must have been an origin to the process, the first "prime mover"—God.

—The intricate, orderly design of the universe, with its amazing interacting balance of forces, rhythms and regularities, from atom to star, indicate some infinitely intelligent planner—God. All sciences are utterly dependent on this steady pattern, drawing everything they know from it.

—The partial degrees of natural perfection suggest there must be Perfection; the good suggest there must be the best—God.

Always Bring

—Since all things in nature, conceivably could either be or not be, as is the case in their springing up and dying away, this contingent quality could not apply to everything, because it would mean everything once may have been nothing. This could not be true, however, since things do exist and something is necessary to bring anything out of nothing, thus making necessary something that always has been—God.

MORAL: Deep within man lies a curious, unique "moral law" or sense of "oughtness," a voice of conscience that in some cases may demand that he sacrifice his own self-interest, safety or even survival for its sake.

It is unexplained by any biological or psychological urges, such as those for power or pleasure, since it may contradict them. It can be compromised or rejected, and often is, but it remains fastened within, pricking, goading, even when resisted secretly, unknown to anyone else.

Application Varies

Its application varies among different cultures, but they all are found to display it, and the very comparison of approaches to it presupposes its universal reality.

In an immediate sense, it can be attributed to teaching or conditioning of parents or ancestors, but at some point, they had to get it from somewhere, and the source must have transcended man since its noblest manifestations may defy all natural forces: reputation, family, social well-being and instincts of self-preservation.

It is what the 18th century philosopher Immanuel Kant called the "categorical imperative" to strive for the highest good, the "summum bonum" of God.

TELEOLOGICAL: Like an arrow shot willfully at a target, the world, in all its natural and human phenomena of change, displays a basic purposefulness.

"Do you have a card for a boy who is sort of going with another girl but you hope he'll break up with her and ask you for a date?"

Abrasiveness Is Factor In Toothpaste Analysis

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE
WASHINGTON — For many years, dentists have been disturbed about the possibility that some toothpastes may do more harm than good because of excessive abrasiveness.

People who brush their teeth after every meal, as they are told to do by most dentists, sometimes find that they destroy tooth enamel which they are trying to preserve in the fight against decay.

Dentists have known that some toothpastes are more abrasive than others, but until recently they have not been able to pinpoint the problem and cite scientific evidence on the matter.

That absence of evidence is no longer. The American Dental Association has announced results of a study showing that tooth enamel is indeed destroyed by some toothpastes more than others. It is the first time the association conducted such a study.

Abrasiveness is only one of the matters to be considered in buying toothpaste. Others are germ-fighting ability, presence of absence of fluoride and, of course, taste and general acceptability to the user.

But abrasiveness has become increasingly important because of the new emphasis on whiteness, which, according to one company, can give your mouth "sex appeal."

Give a compulsive brusher a very abrasive toothpaste, and the result may be the destruction of more tooth enamel than would occur from cavities without any brushing. The Dental Association puts it this way: "Dental enamel is hard and resistant to abrasion. It is likely that significant amounts of enamel will not be lost by the judicious use of most of the dentifrices marketed today.

"It should be noted, however, that the compulsive brusher may wear away significant amounts of dental enamel, especially with the more highly abrasive formulations."

"A dentifrice should be no more abrasive than is necessary to keep the teeth clean — that is, free of accessible plaque (the film that forms ridges of tartar) debris and superficial stain."

The association concedes that the needs of each individual vary, that some people may be able to clean their teeth with a toothbrush and water alone.

Most dentists also recommend use of dental floss or ribbon.

People who should be most concerned are those with gum problems which have exposed the softer portions of the teeth normally protected by the gum.

The study listed the relative abrasivity of 21 toothpastes, from lowest to highest, as follows:

T-Lak 20, Listerine 26, Pepsodent with zirconium silicate 26, Ammi-dent 33, Colgate with MFP 51, Ultra-Brite 64, Macleans spearmint 66, Macleans regular 70, Pearl Drops 72, Crest mint 81, Close-up 87, old formula Macleans spearmint and regular, both 93, Crest regular 95, Gleem II 106, Plus White 110, Phillips 114, Plus White Plus 132, Vote 134, Ident

Chilton Is $450 Short of UF Goal

CHILTON — The United Fund campaign fell about $450 short of its $6,700 goal, according to John Suttner, chairman.

Checks will be distributed in January to agencies included in the campaign. Election of officers and directors also will be conducted at this time.

Persons still wishing to contribute can send their donation to the Commercial Bank.

No. 2 174 and Smokers Tooth Paste 202.

The purpose of the tests, according to the Dental Association, was to provide dentists with reliable information with which to advise patients about toothpastes on the market.

Any question should be addressed to your dentist.

ty and environment is the strongest of all. It saves a great deal of time. Our tribe always has music going on.

"Your Mummy's mother was a pianist. Her father played violin. My father wanted to play violin and never could. In his Orthodox upbringing it was considered much too sensual and superficial. He was supposed to study the holy Scriptures. Mother played piano a bit and took lessons on the cello at one time. When my sisters began arriving, that stopped the cello lessons.

Life in Music

"No one could enjoy music more than my sister Yalta. For Yalta, you take music away and you take her life away. That's not the case with my sister Hepzibah. She has so many interests, she would still survive. She needs music as a counterpoint for others.

"Certainly there was plenty of pianists in the family, not only my sisters, but Mummy's brother-in-law, Louis Kentner.

"That was one reason I didn't encourage you in music. I thought I had enough pianists in the family. And I didn't encourage you on the violin. You might easily have been better than me."

Jeremy: "They always teased me about dropping things. At least I couldn't drop a piano. With the violin, it would be much more dangerous."

Push More

Yehudi: "I don't think the disadvantages of Jeremy being in a musical family are any greater than the disadvantages of having any parents at all. If the family were not musical, he might have been pushed more."

Jeremy: "I always had a little bit of music lessons, just the musical training everybody should have. Then I decided to be a musician at about 15. I had to fight a year and a half."

Yehudi: "It did him a lot of good. When you did go to Paris to study, you were so determined. You showed Mummy and me a working schedule. Unless you got 60 hours of work a week done, you weren't satisfied."

Jeremy: "One wastes more time at 19 than at 17. Now I'm a terrible hedonist."

Kind Heart
Yehudi: "Jeremy makes me feel that I am of use. He makes me feel I can give advice. He has a kind heart. It is very nice to have a child who takes pleasure in putting his parents at ease."

Jeremy: "The only way to be independent is by putting parents at ease. You say, 'Don't worry, I won't get run over,' and whether you do or not, you put them at ease. It's better than coming home and saying, 'I'm a revolutionary. I don't like that sort of chair,' and breaking it. That won't get very far."

Yehudi: "He has slammed a few doors in his life. I won that. It was only two days running."

Jeremy: "I sometimes regret not slamming more than I did."

Yehudi: "Do you mind if I tell about it?"

Boarding School
Jeremy: "I don't mind if you don't mind."

Yehudi: "It was over his going to Eton to boarding school, when he was 15. He had attended a day school in London, an excellent school. He had studied extremely well. He was living in the bosom of the family. I felt he was getting intolerable and spoiled and very unimportant. 'I felt that unless something was done, he would always remain growing out of the family instead of out of himself. I wanted the outside world to have a hand in you. Your brother was at Eton, he wasn't getting along with you. It would be a wonderful thing for you to share his life a little bit. And you'd have a room with a piano.'"

Jeremy: "I practiced a half hour a day."

Yehudi: "He resents the fact he wasn't able to give himself completely to music."

Jeremy: "Not even quarterly to music. I regret not being able to balance the day better among subjects. I considered superfluous and get some more music study."

Yehudi: "When I came upon him with the idea of going to Eton he hit the ceiling."

Jeremy: "I wanted to go to your school. It's 50-50 music and other subjects."

Yehudi: "You would have been spoiled at my school. Anyway, you survived."

Jeremy: "I still maintain, by the skin of my teeth."

After a year and a half at Eton, Jeremy gained his object, to go to Paris and study with Nadia Boulanger. His older brother is a film editor, and they did become friends.

Yehudi: "Well, one thing we all agree on. Children don't owe their parents anything at all."

Jeremy: "I don't agree. I'm sure the most formative years are before 10. If you grow up to be acceptable, you have something to be thankful for to the people who looked after you."

Yehudi: "Well, we always agree about musical interpretation."

Jeremy: "Of course. We understand the reasons for things."

Yehudi: "And I never commit myself until I know yours."

getting away from it all...

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It's that time of year again when the heart delights in the joys of a winter wonderland, yet yearns for a sun-warmed life in a tropical paradise. Now, thanks to fashion, we can chart a course to the exotic shores of the South Pacific without ever leaving the Fox River Valley.

Designers take us there in primitive prints and sweet and sour colors done here in the many facets of wool. It's the fabric with a built-in thermostat that can keep island-hoppers cool and armchair travelers warm.

No better way to get away from it all than in a safari jacket and pants fashioned in whisperweight wool knit. A quick change to a patterned sleeveless tunic of red with tropical white daisies and the wide, blue skies of Hawaii beckon.

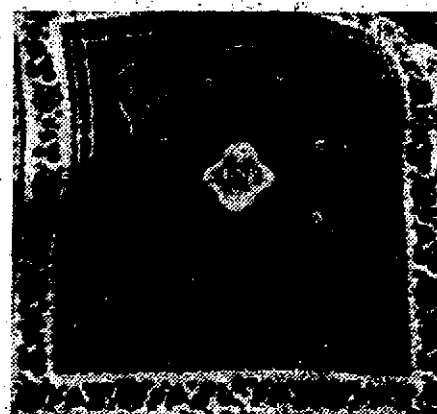

From there it's only a hop and a skip in a lightweight jumpsuit to Fiji or Tahiti. Shaped in a long, lean unbroken line, it's made for handcrafted accessories—a silk-screened sash, a multi-beaded headband, metallic circlelets studded with semi-precious stones or strands of leather laden with brass ornaments.

Between swims in shapely wool swimsuits that dry in no time, a sheer djellaba shaped like a giant butterfly with a motif brilliant as a ginger lily can evoke if not match in reality the tropical surroundings. Then for evening, the sea once more reigns with pearls that cascade and crest upon sheer evening dress of lilac, wrapped at the bodice and skirt much in the manner of a kimono.

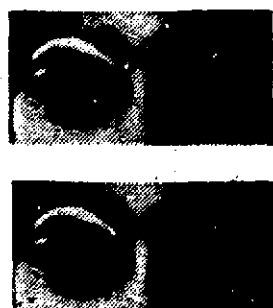

Finally, bridging the gap between East and West are shirtdresses in endless combinations of wool weaves that function fashionably morning, noon and night. Together, with pantsuits, swimwear and gowns, they're the ticket to fashion adventure.

Printed in a lush ethnic pattern of the sheerest-weight wool, this shirtwaist by Yvonne Originals is fashioned from Auburn Fabrics. The colorings and classic lines of the silhouette befit the enchanting setting of a garden rising above a lagoon in the mountains of Tahiti.

A myriad of tropical blossoms and leaves pattern Onondaga's pure wool of sheerest quality, draped in great djellaba by Michael Novarese. At right, Norman Todd's passion pink double knit jumpsuit brightens the beauty of a Fiji tapestry. Its tailored lines can take home many a souvenir from silk-screened sashes to strands of leather laden with brass ornaments.

A shapely shirtwaist of canary yellow appeals to vacationers and armchair travelers for its easy care quality. Worn above in a Polynesian setting, the Ernst Strauss dress would be equally at home in snowy climes.

Airily off at left to see the world is a whole skyful of wool shaped by Jantzen. Done in double knit wool, the pants and flowered tunic make Hawaii seem that much closer on these winter days.

Holiday Trim Glistens at 41st Charity Ball

Monday, December 21, 1970

The Post-Crescent C 2

Saturday evening North Shore Golf Club was decked in holiday trim — colored lights, Christmas trees and wreaths — as members of the community arrived to join the Infant Welfare Circle of The King's Daughters for its annual Charity Ball. As partygoers dined, danced and visited with friends, they knew their contributions would help the circle continue its charitable community work. During the evening couples were snapped as they paused in front of the giant Christmas tree in the lobby of the club by a roving photographer who later gave each of them a print as a memento of this

Chairman of this year's event was Mrs. William Zuehlke Jr. with Mrs. E. Robert Graef acting as co-chairman.

As the Band played music for dancing, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spooner, at left, step in front of the fireplace at North Shore Golf Club to join others at the 41st annual Charity Ball. Above, Mrs. Fred Herbolzheimer and Mrs. E. Robert Graef, members of the hostess Infant Welfare Circle of The King's Daughters, greet Dr. and Mrs. John Mielke as they arrive at the sparkling holiday event.

While Some Danced to the music of the band, others were gathered in another part of the club listening to the guitar music of Bob Finch. Being serenaded are Mrs. Donald Schalk, Menasha; Charles De Zemler, Neenah, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Phenner, Menasha.

Sleep Tight In Silence Or Clamour

Whatever helps you fall asleep fastest — a lot of noise or a lot of silence — there are devices to help you, reports the Spring Air Mattress Co.

You can wear a pair of acoustical earmuffs or ear plugs to bed, and make sure of silence by equipping your bedroom with thick carpeting, heavily draped windows, an acoustical ceiling and tight-shutting doors.

Or if noise is your bag, there's a recording that plays sounds of surf on one side and the chatter of tropical birds on the other. There's also a "white-sound" machine that produces a lulling hum which supposedly masks out other disturbing noise.

A Tiny Christmas house, the work of circle member, Mrs. E. N. Olson, is admired by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Mendel. Complete with a Christmas tree in the living room and decked with a miniature wreath, the child's doll house added another dimension to the decorations of the holiday season. Below, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Splitt finish dinner at the club before joining other partygoers on the dance floor.

When an opponent finds the only lead to defeat a slam contract, it does not promise to be a great day. Some of us accept our fate philosophically; others look for ways to make the best of a bad situation.

Observe how Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles wrestled with fate in the play of today's slam hand.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♦	Pass
4♣	Pass	4♥	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of hearts.

Kantar was the partner of Ace Billy Eisenberg in the world pairs tournament in Stockholm, Sweden. Eisenberg selected a jump to two no-trump at his first turn because minor-suit jump bids are in a hazy area and because, at pairs scoring, no-trump contracts yield better scores.

When Kantar showed his second minor, Eisenberg cue-bid the heart ace and Kantar placed the slam.

West's lead of the heart 10 quickly found Kantar's weakness. Since the loss of the club ace was unavoidable, the contract was destined for easy defeat if Kantar resigned himself to this fate. What could he do to avoid disaster?

After winning dummy's ace of hearts, Kantar created a diversionary disturbance. He led dummy's queen of spades from dummy! East was quick to cover with the king, which Kantar won with the ace. East's spade jack was now high. Kantar extracted trumps and followed by a club to dummy's jack, which forced East's ace. Kantar's diversionary maneuvers, East would have an easy heart play. Instead, East now had a choice — and a problem. Should he cash the heart king or should he try the spade jack?

He guessed wrong. Kantar ruffed the jack of spades and scored his slam.

In retrospect, we might find many reasons to chastise East for not making the winning play. However, the main point remains that Kantar confronted East with a choice of plays rather than shruggingly accepting fate. Some chance, however slight, is always better than none.

Christmas by Way of Microwave

Members of the Y Forum Supper Club had a Christmas party last week and learned all about the wonders of fast cooking on an electronic oven range at the same time.

They were guests of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co. with Home Economist Mary Beth Kuester, Forum Club member and adviser, hostess for the evening. The group met for supper and a demonstration at the firm's Service Center.

The menu was all Christmas, except the food preparation decidedly did not follow any time-honored tradition. It was all done for a crowd of 30 within minutes, some of the dishes prepared on the spot while guests were eating their entrée.

It was a lesson in the new look to cooking, from pizza appetizers (cooked in 5 to 11 minutes) to an entrée of Beefburger Stroganoff (11 preheated; high electronic power. Cook from 11 to 15 minutes.

LAYERED HERB BREAD

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon sesame seed
2 tablespoons dill weed
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 teaspoon poppy seed
2 cans refrigerated crescent dinner rolls

2 tablespoons sesame seed
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Combine quarter-cup Parmesan, tablespoon sesame seed, dill, garlic powder, onion salt and poppy seed. Set mixed seasoning aside.

Separate crescent dough into 8 rectangles. Cut two of rectangles in halves, crosswise. Place 1 1/2 rectangles of dough on bottom of ungreased loaf dish (glass). Sprinkle tablespoon of mixed seasoning over top of dough. Continue layering, dough and seasoning, forming three more layers. Place remaining two rectangles on top, overlapping dough to fit. Combine additional 2 tablespoons sesame seed and 2 tablespoons grated cheese; sprinkle over top of loaf. Place dish on round shelf in electronic oven.

Set oven sequence: 400 degrees, not preheated. Cook at low power for 15 to 17 minutes. Remove from pan and let cool 10 minutes before slicing. Serve warm.

PUMPKIN CRUNCH

1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon flour

1 tablespoon melted butter

1 yellow cake mix
1 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup water
3 eggs
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Combine ingredients in first portion of recipe as topping and filling. Blend well, set aside.

Combine all ingredients of second portion of recipe. Blend at low speed with electric mixer until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Pour one-half batter into a well-greased, 13 x 9 x 2 baking dish. Spread batter evenly. Sprinkle with half reserved mixture. Place dish in center of round shelf in oven. Set electronic oven sequence: high power, cooking at 400-degrees from 7 to 9 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm. Recipe makes 32 servings.

If this dessert is baked with conventional heat, the preheated oven temperature is 250 degrees and baking time is from 45 to 50 minutes.

minutes by electronic power) and the toothsome dessert of Pumpkin Crunch, piled high with fluffy white topping (made in 7 minutes.)

Ideal Arrangement

The advantages of the new ranges with two ovens, having conventional and electric power and self-cleaning features, was pointed out by the home economist. She also explained how the food cooked with electronic "molecular" activity through the food itself while the oven and the baking dishes stayed cool. The combination of two types of cooking are ideal, she explained, in that microwave does the job super-fast, beautifully and with ease but it does not brown.

For these jobs, the conventional oven is turned on. Miss Kuester said. She demonstrated how fudge can be made with constant success by dumping ingredients into a glass bowl, popping it into the electronic oven and taking it out piping hot when the warning bell sounded a few minutes later. She left the wooden stirring spoon in the bowl to show that the utensil doesn't get the least bit warm while the fudge has melted together, ready to be stirred briskly before getting too thick.

Here are some of the supper recipes made for the party. All of them can be prepared by the conventional method by juggling the time back to a slower process.

COCKTAIL PIZZAS

10 refrigerator biscuits
1/4 pound cheddar cheese, cut into 10 cubes
1/4 cup chili sauce
Garlic salt
Oregano
Grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 pound Italian sausage, cut into 10 slices
Preheat oven to 500 degrees.

Remove biscuits from can; arrange in greased 8-inch round dish. Press cheese cube into center of each; top with 1 teaspoon chili sauce. Sprinkle with garlic salt, oregano and grated cheese. Place one slice of sausage on top. Set electronic oven sequence: bake at 500 degrees, low power. Cook from 5 to 7 minutes. Serve hot.

BEEFBURGER

STROGANOFF
1 pound ground chuck beef
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
1 garlic clove, minced
1 can (7 oz.) mushroom stems, pieces, drained
1 can condensed cream mushroom soup
1/4 cup shredded cheese (sharp)
2 ounces canned pimiento, sliced, drained
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon bottled brown sauce
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Cook rice

Break meat in small pieces into 3-quart casserole. Add onion, garlic, mushrooms, soup, cheese, pimiento, flour, salt, pepper; mix thoroughly. Cover and place dish in center of round shelf in oven. Set electronic oven sequence: bake at 350 degrees, not

Report Secret Activity For Ted for President

Senator's Assistant Said to be Asking Labor to Keep Open Mind on Candidacy

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A big reason why front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine is looking back over his shoulder in some dismay is the not-so-subtle change in secret activity by agents of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy since the Nov. 3 election.

song to Democratic politicians: don't commit yourself so inexorably to somebody else that you can't come back to Teddy if and when the time is ripe. Central to this clandestine activity is 31-year-old James F. Flug, a Brooklyn boy by way of Harvard who has become a top

Evans Nowak

Ted Kennedy political operative (officially, chief counsel of Kennedy's Senate Administrative Practice Subcommittee). Flug has been particularly concentrating on labor leaders now strongly leaning toward Muskie. Confiding first that the Kennedy camp has no objection to their working for Muskie now, Flug then expresses hope that they keep themselves open to switch to Kennedy later.

Whether Kennedy personally is aware of this activity remains a mystery. But he too has changed. Politicians who have talked privately to him since the election detect a little less insistence that he will not run. Their conclusion: Kennedy won't enter any primaries but he is considerably more interested in 1972 than he publicly lets on.

A footnote: One leftish Democratic politician on the verge of boarding the Muskie presidential bandwagon is the Rev. Joseph Duffey, national chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) and just defeated for the senate from Connecticut. A key McCarthy supporter in 1968, Duffey is engaged in long discussions with the Muskie high command.

Slipped Sisk
One of the surest signs that the previously high-flying campaign for house majority leader by Rep. B. F. Sisk of California is now collapsing is the lack of support by the powerful Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas. Mills months ago was privately boosting Texas-born Sisk. With other Southern exarchs in the House, he was expected to shift to Sisk away from controversial Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana. Despite the cool relations between Boggs and Mills over the years, however, Mills will vote for him at least on the first ballot at next month's caucus. What's more, he may well accept Boggs' invitation to deliver a seconding speech for him.

That's not the only bad Dixie news for Sisk. Rep. Phil Landrum of Georgia has brought his state's eight Democratic congressmen behind Boggs, and the Florida delegation spurned an attempt by Rep. Robert Sikes to endorse Sisk. The nine Floridians will be split several ways.

Sisk's tepid Southern reception stems in part from his failure to corral his own California delegation despite its formal endorsement. At best, Sisk now has 11 of 20 California Democrats. Finally, the slashing attack against Sisk as too conservative by liberal organizations has scared off some Northern big city Democrats.

The upshot: Boggs, though hurt by Sisk, is now back in strong contention. He and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, the top liberal hopeful, lead the pack though both lack a majority. The absence of any bandwagon has led to dark-horse talk about two Massachusetts Democrats — Edward Boland and Thomas (Tip) O'Neill (roommates at Washington's Woodley Park Apartments).

Nixon Delegates Hunt?
Atty. Gen. John Mitchell's first choice for a top political technician to run President Nixon's delegate operation for the 1972 Republican convention has given a polite but firm no on grounds of prior commitments. Arizonan Stephen Shadegg, a key figure in Barry Goldwater's 1964 drive for the Republican nomination and author of a forthcoming biography of Clare Boothe Luce, informed Mitchell's agent, Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, that he could not accept the assignment.

The offer, coming this far before the 1972 campaign, suggests Mitchell may be somewhat concerned about Mr. Nixon's standing within his own party. Normally, tying down convention delegates is an incumbent President's lowest priority. Whether or not that really concerns Mitchell, the offer to the 1971 In Government Program. The meeting will be conducted in the youth department at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 28. The In Government Program, a convention in Madison April 2 and 3 provides an opportunity for young delegates to draw up bills and pass them through a mock legislature. A prelegislative assembly will be held Jan. 30 at the East Central YMCA, Milwaukee. The youth program is state-wide.

The Most Exciting Headache News In Years!

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet (that needs no prescription) Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

If you're one of the many who get tense, nervous headaches, these latest tests by doctors should be of the greatest importance. In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors. These doctors' tests proved, beyond a doubt, that Anacin is just as effective to relieve tension headaches, yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical. With Anacin, headache pain and its nervous tension vanish in minutes. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. You can take it without getting dizzy or an upset stomach. Next time take powerful, fast-acting Anacin. Anacin Tablets give the same complete headache pain relief as the leading prescription product for which doctors wrote 21 million prescriptions last year.

Teen Needs Professional Counseling

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl who is too ashamed to talk to anyone about my problem. I still wet the bed and can't stop no matter how hard I try. Because of this I have never been able to go to camp or sleep at anybody's house. The worst part is I have a big-mouth brother who tells everybody. He teases me and calls me "Baby." This is awfully hard to take. Three years ago Mom took me to a urologist to see if there was something wrong with my kidneys or bladder. The doctor took all kinds of tests and said I was in perfect health. That very night I wet the bed. Mom got mad. She called me "lazy," and said I was wetting the bed on purpose. Nothing could be further from the truth. I'd give anything if I could stop, Ann. It would change my whole life. Please help me. — Night Floater

Dear N.F.: When a parent takes a child to a doctor and is told, "The tests show nothing organically wrong," I don't understand why in the world that parent doesn't ask the doctor,

"What then is the reason for my problem? What should we do next?" The vast majority of bed wetters have no organic illness. The bed wetting is caused by an emotional problem. Every good urologist knows this. You should have had professional counseling years ago. Your mother should waste no more time. DEAR ANN LANDERS: We married young and had a baby the first year. For financial reasons we moved in with my husband's family. I appreciate everything they are doing for us but my mother-in-law is very bossy and I can't stand up to her. What bugs me most is that she has taken over my baby and made me feel like an outsider. My mother-in-law decides what the baby will eat, when he will nap, what he will wear — all the things a mother should decide. My husband can't give me any help because he works two jobs and is never around when I need him. Shouldn't a mother be allowed to take care of her own child — even though she lives with her in-laws? Can you help me? — Excluded.

Dear Ex: You can help yourself. Move. Since your husband is working two jobs you can surely afford a couple of rooms someplace. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there a special place at God's right hand for the woman's editor of a newspaper? I refer to that incredible snobbish, self-important female who decides whose daughter is going to get her engagement or wedding picture in the paper and whose party is going to make the page. I live in a city where the Cabots speak only to the Lowells and the Lowells speak only to God. If you don't happen to belong to one of the "better" families you have no chance of getting your name, much less your face, in the society section. It makes me sick to see the same names and the same ugly pusses day after day. Something should be done about this unfair managing of the news. Lend a hand, will you? — Irate

Dear I: I know a great many women's editors (some are men) and they are invariably the hardest-working, most harassed people on the paper. Space is always a problem and I'm continually amazed at how well they do. If some of you complainers walked in the woman's editor's moccasins for one day you'd be less critical.

Bucks Play Lakers for Sports Scene

BY TV SCOUT
8-10 Channels 11-9 — With Monday night football over, how does Monday night basketball grab you? Tonight, there's an NBA Basketball Game on the schedule, and it's a good one — the Los Angeles Lakers and the Milwaukee Bucks, from Milwaukee. This will have Wilt Chamberlain going against Lew Alcindor, and right there you have a mighty jump-off.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Gunsmoke reruns a 1967 episode in which Doc (Milburn Stone) delivers triplets to one of the victims of a stage holdup, then has his hands full taking care of them when they're orphaned. Finding a home for the babies isn't all that easy, especially when it's learned that their father was an outlaw.

7-9 Channels 11-9 — The Young Lawyers has what producer Matt Ratp considers one of its best. At least, it's different. The central figure is a fascinating character, played by a fine actor, Edmond O'Brien. He's an old man, living in an apartment building, and all his neighbors consider him a pain in the neck. Their efforts to get rid of him lead to a lot of legal work — so much that the young lawyers elect to stage a trial of their own. O'Brien is accused of being a "Bad Neighbor," and Zalman King defends him, Lee J. Cobb is the prosecutor and Judy Pace is the presiding judge.

7-8 Channel 5 — Greer Garson is hardly the type of star you'd expect to find on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In, but here she is. Her several scenes and skits include a tongue-twister role as Fanny Farkel, or Mrs. Frank Farkel (Dan) the mother of Frank Farkel Jr. (Arte Johnson) (R)

7:30-8 Channels 2-7 — The new neighbors, on Here's Lucy, prove to be a nasty threesome — Ma Parker and her two kids, who are really midgets, and the three are counterfeiters. They're caught, so Lucy impersonates Ma in order to help the police trap their contact. This crook is played by one of the all-time great crook players, Marc Lawrence.

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — The whole huge cast gather for the Christmas party on The Doris Day Show, and it's a happy time. The only problem is the neighbor, Billy DeWolfe, who is a scrooge type — the noise of the party bothers him, because he wants to read "A Christmas Carol," as he likes Scrooge.

9-10 Channels 2-7 — The Carol Burnett Show has another superior comedy offering with two highspots: in one, Carol and Nanette Fabray are censors viewing dirty movies and trying to figure what to cut; in the other, a chapter of "As the Stomach Turns," Nan plays a best friend who is hooked on pills because her married life leaves something to be desired.

Robert McCoy, superintendent of schools, accompanied them. The parents of each student will have an opportunity early in 1971 to consult with personnel from Wausau about their children. The juniors and seniors in the program attended a day's session in October.

Lions Blank Packers Again, Gain Playoffs

Barney's Dazzling Runs Spark 20-0 Win

Post-Crescent News Service

DETROIT — At one point in the frustrating 1970 season, Bart Starr facetiously mused, "Wonder if I could get an arm transplant?"

Starr, a prideful performer who scorns "alibis," is reluctant to admit it, but he could have used one here Sunday afternoon.

Starr, owner of the lowest career interception percentage in National Football League history, obviously was handicapped by tendonitis in his throwing arm and the Detroit Lions made capital of it.

They stole three of his passes, converting two of them into 10 points, en route to a 20-0 victory that lifted them into the National Football League playoffs opposite the Dallas Cowboys.

Worst Since 1958

At the same time, the Lions doomed the Packers to their least respectable finish (6-8) since 1958, when they emerged with a dismal 1-10-1 record, worst in their history.

The talented Lem Barney contributed mightily to the Detroit cause, running back a kickoff, a punt and an interception a total of 188 yards, but some of his opportunities might never have developed if Starr's arm had been in good health.

As Coach Phil Bengtson relistically pointed out, "We had to punt to the Lions nine times and we knew, with all of those chances, that it was likely Barney would break one of those returns."

That inevitable development came early in the fourth quarter. Barney, overrun by the Errol Mann field goals) as coverage, shot into the open and cantered 65 yards to the Green Bay 13-yard-line, triggering the game's first touchdown, which came two plays later on Greg Landry's strike to a lonely Charlie Sanders in the right corner of the end zone.

Until that fateful point, the Lions led by a mere 6-0 (two touchdowns) and the Packers' smothering defenses exerted devastating control.

The Packers defenders, burdened by the offense's inability to move the ball, patently deserved a better fate. Thrust into situations where the Lions took possession at the Green Bay 35, 29 and 8, following two interceptions and a punt, they did not permit the enemy a first down until only 4:50 remained in the first half.

Praises Barney

'Defense Played Well Enough to Win,' Says Bengtson in Defeat

Post-Crescent News Service

DETROIT — Ordinarily, there is not much to cheer about in a 20-0 defeat.

But even amid the gloom of Sunday's closing loss to Detroit, Coach Phil Bengtson found solace and satisfaction in the performance of his defense, which limited the potent Lions to a net of 162 yards.

"I was proud of them," he said. "The defense played well enough to win. As many tough situations as they were put in, I thought they played about as well as they could."

"And we had Kenny Ellis out of there at the left corner, too," Bengtson pointed out. "I thought Al Mathews did a helluva job in his place."

"It was only 6-0 at the end of the third quarter, so if we get a touchdown, we win. But in a close game like that, you need the kind of thing they got from Len Barney — you need somebody to break a punt return or an interception for you."

Obviously, if a defense knows it doesn't have to worry about the long pass, it can play shallower and defense the run better."

The Lions' first two interceptions may have been attributable to Starr's arm problems, Bengtson conceded, but added, "The last one, the one that Barney ran in for a touchdown, was pretty well covered."

Paying tribute to Barney, who amassed 226 yards on punt, kickoff and interception run-backs, the Packer leader said, "On those kickoff and punt returns, Barney did a helluva job of running and we didn't do a very good job of covering."

Net of 162 Yards

And, despite Detroit's substantial margin in opportunities, they limited the Lions to a net of 162 yards for the day.

That is only 38 more than 124 the Packers were able to manage. Starr, sacked five times for 44 yards by a blitzing Detroit defense accounted for 78 of the latter figure on 15 completions in 27 attempts. But, under normal circumstances, he could have done appreciably better.

Although loath to discuss his arm troubles ("I don't want to take anything away from the Lions' performance"), the 15-year veteran admitted, "There are certain routes I just can't throw."

"There were times the Lions had good penetration, but there were a number of times when I had good penetration, but there of time to throw, but I just couldn't hit them. Carroll Dale had guys beaten and I couldn't get him the ball."

"There were plenty of opportunities for us to move and control the ball, if I could have just hit."

"The frustrating thing is there is not one thing I can do about it."

Issue in Doubts

Three of those opportunities all coming while the issue was very much in doubt, were particularly attractive. But the Packers emerged from them with a net of one blocked field goal to compound their frustrations.

The first came when they reached the Detroit 40 in the second quarter with the aid of a

Brodie Sacked Only 8 Times in 1970

49ers Capture 1st Title

By ERIC PREWITT

OAKLAND (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers, after winning their first championship in their first quarter century, showed more exhaustion and contemplation than jubilation.

"When you have to win three in a row, and you do it, then you have to sit down and think about it a while," explained Jim Johnson, one of the defensive stars in Sunday's 38-7 triumph over the Oakland Raiders.

The 49ers, 10-3-1, edged the Los Angeles Rams, 9-4-1, for the Western Division title in the National Football Conference and play at Minnesota next Sunday in the first round of the National Football League playoffs.

"But they came to play today," Nolan said of the Raiders. "They had their starters in most of the way."

Losing coach John Madden said, "While we didn't have to win it, no one wanted those fumbles or interceptions. We sincerely wanted to win," he said.

"It's up to us now to wipe this one out of our minds."

The Raiders lost four fumbles and suffered five interceptions. The first of the fatal errors came in the opening period with the 49ers ahead 3-0, when fullback Hewitt Dixon lost the ball and 49er defender Roosevelt Taylor recovered at the 49ers one-yard line.

In the second quarter, San Francisco quarterback John Brodie threw touchdown passes to Ted Kwalick and Gene Washington. In between, Johnson scored a touchdown on an interception with assists from Oakland tight end Ray Chester and 49er linebacker Dave Wilcox.

"They bopped the ball into the air and volleyballed it to me," said Johnson, who picked it off near the sideline and ran 36 yards.

Gregg Insists Sunday's Tilt Was 'Finale'

DETROIT — "That," Forrest Gregg said, "is a lot of huddles."

The Packers' indestructible old pro was reflecting upon what he insists is his final performance in green and gold — one which stretched his National Football League consecutive game record to 187.

Gregg, who made an extensive appearance at right tackle in the Pack's 20-0 loss to Detroit, has eclipsed the previous all-time record by five games. It was set by former teammate Jim Ringo, who retired at the end of the 1967 season.

"I'm sorry we didn't win the last game I played in," the man from Birthright (Tex.) said, a little sadly, "but I was glad I had a chance to play."

24-7 Lead

The three touchdowns in the second period came within six minutes and sent the 49ers into a 24-7 halftime lead. Brodie threw his third touchdown pass of the day and 24th of the season in the final period to Bill Tucker.

Brodie, the NFL's leading passer, completed only seven

Nelsen's 2 TD Passes Key 27-13 Cleveland Victory

DENVER (AP) — Alerly turning four Denver misplays into scores, the Cleveland Browns, with Bill Nelsen tossing a pair of touchdown passes, closed the regular National Football League season with a 27-13 victory over the Broncos Sunday.

The Browns, 7-7, finished second in the American Conference to Cincinnati. The Bengals, 8-6, beat Boston, 45-7, to earn a playoff berth.

After a tight first half, the Browns crammed 17 points into the third period with Nelsen throwing both TD passes.

Nelsen hit Homer Jones for a 43-yard TD after Brown line-backer Dale Lindsey intercepted a pass in the end zone.

Steal Pass
A half-minute later, Erich Barnes stole a Bronco pass and ran to the Denver 23. Nelsen passed to Bo Scott for the touchdown on the next play. It was Scott's second touchdown of the day. He also scored on a two-yard run in the second period.

Willis Crenshaw scored the Broncos' only touchdown late in the game after Cornell Gordon intercepted a pass thrown by rookie Mike Phipps of Cleveland and ran 34 yards to the one.

The Broncos took a 3-0 lead in the first four minutes on Bobby Howfield's 48-yard field goal but after that it was all Cleveland.

Big Second Half Sparks Bucks

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The flashy Milwaukee Bucks turned on an impressive pair of last-half scoring spurts Sunday night for their 25th National Basketball Association victory and a tune-up for what ABC hopes will be a Monday night television coup.

Milwaukee outscored the Buffalo Braves 25-4 and 18-2 in surges that sealed a 131-101 victory in the Milwaukee Arena, where the Bucks (25-6) host the Los Angeles Lakers tonight before the cameras. (Channel 11).

ABC said tonight's telecast is the only Monday pro basketball it will produce prior to the playoffs, but that it will be watching the results closely to gauge whether the entertainment has enough audience appeal to take over in the absence of its successful Monday night pro football experiment.

Chet Forte, an ABC producer-director, said the prime-time football telecasts lured 30 million spectators each Monday night during the season, and that basketball could do likewise because it "might be the sport of the 70s."

Irv Brodsky, ABC publicist, said the network has made no decision concerning Monday night basketball. Tonight's game and the playoffs "are the only barometers we'll have on whether the interest is there," he said.

Milwaukee's first half with Buffalo might have dismayed the ABC crewmen because of its lack of luster. The Braves took a two-point lead into intermission.

Then, beginning with a 64-64 tie, the Bucks erupted 25-4 in the third period, allowed Buffalo to close within 113-99 with four minutes left in the final quarter, and surged once more on an 18-2 run.

The Bucks, shrugging aside aside Saturday's 119-110 setback by Cincinnati, went through the third-quarter rally with Bob Dandridge scoring 11 points.

Dandridge finished the game with 23, second only to lofty Lew Alcindor's 27 points. Oscar Robertson added 22.

Win Gives Miami Berth in Playoffs

MIAMI (AP) — Don Shula doesn't like being called a miracle worker, but Miami Dolphins fans have to wipe their eyes to be sure there isn't at least a dim halo hovering about the coach's head.

"Getting into the playoffs," said Shula, "that's what this game is all about."

The upstart Dolphins clobbered Buffalo 45-7 Sunday to march into the National Football League championship series. Miami plays at Oakland in a Sunday American Conference semifinal.

"You begin thinking about this goal of making the playoffs when training camp opens," said Shula. "Nothing is really meaningful until you make it."

The Orange Bowl scene had changed greatly in 53 weeks since the 1969 Dolphins were smashed by the New York Jets 27-9 and packed their bags with a miserable 3-10-1 record.

Lure Shula
Several weeks after that, the Dolphins fired head coach George Wilson and—to the pro football world's amazement—lured Shula from a fat situation with the Baltimore Colts.

Shula became a part owner and all coach. He dug in to transform an expansion team with previous seasons of 3-11, 4-10, 5-8-1 and 3-10-1 into a winner. He set no timetables, but even the most sincere Dolphin backers figured a break-even season was a grand achievement.

Shula now rides a six-game winning streak and owns a 10-4 record. He's in the playoffs and just two victories away from returning to Miami as a participant in the Jan. 17 Super Bowl. Shula's been in the Super Bowl before. And, it was in Miami. His Baltimore favorites were upset by the New York Jets and Joe Namath 17-9 in the 1969 showdown.

"You have to be happy with what hard work and dedication has accomplished for this football team," Shula said. "They began putting out in July and never stopped, even when we lost three straight games. But, like I said, only now does it become meaningful."

Dream Comes True for Paul Brown
Bengals Wrap Up Title by Overwhelming Boston, 45-7

CINCINNATI (AP) — When Paul Brown started building a professional football team in Cincinnati in the fall of 1968, he said it would take five years to produce a winner.

His Bengals are now just three years old and Sunday they completed an 8-6 season, winning the last seven games in a row and — most important — won the Central Division championship in the National Football League's American Conference.

They wrapped it up with a 45-7 victory over the Boston Patriots before a season-record crowd of 60,157.

"Personally, this was a dream come true," said Brown who was carried off the field by his players. "I didn't know we could do this well."

Now Face Colts

The victory put the Bengals into the AFC playoffs and they'll meet the Baltimore Colts at Baltimore next Saturday, which said, "Thank you, Art Modell." It was Modell, head of the Cleveland Browns, who fired that Cincinnati has met Baltimore in a sports playoff. The Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cincinnati Reds in October in the baseball World Series.

The Patriots finished the season with a dismal 2-12 record but seldom has a pro football team been so overwhelmed as Boston was Sunday by the Bengals. These statistics tell the story:

—The Bengals scored the first seven times they had the ball, getting six touchdowns and a field goal.

—They did it with second line quarterback Sam Wyche operating in the first quarter after starter Virgil Carter had been hurt twice.

—The Patriots didn't get a first down or complete pass until only about a minute remained in the third quarter.

—The Bengals never had to punt until 5:36 remained in the third quarter.

—The Bengals whipped the Patriots 23-8 in first downs and 424 to 149 in yardage gained; they intercepted two passes and blocked a punt, all three of which ended up with Cincinnati scores.

Gained 63 Yards

Carter threw for one touchdown — a 56-yarder to Chip Myers. Wyche threw for two touchdowns, scored one himself and although not particularly known as a ball carrier, gained 63 yards in six ball-carrying efforts.

Paul Robinson, one of the "originals" of the Bengals and the 1968 rookie-of-the-year in the then American Football League, scored three of the touchdowns. He had touchdown smashes of one and three yards and took a 24-yard pass from Wyche for the other.

When it was all over, there was a sign from a balcony in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium which said, "Thank you, Art Modell." It was Modell, head of the Cleveland Browns, who fired that Cincinnati has met Baltimore in a sports playoff. The Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cincinnati Reds in October in the baseball World Series.

Brown came here to build the Bengals after sitting out several years.

Most Gratifying
"This has been the most interesting and most gratifying season I have ever known," said Brown.

His Bengal team won the first game of the season from Oakland, another AFC division winner, lost six in a row and then finished with the seven straight victories.

The Bengals took the victory in stride and Wyche said, "I don't see any letdown against Baltimore — in fact, I think this momentum is pyramiding."

Over in the Patriot dressing room there was complete quiet. Joe Kapp, who signed with the Patriots after a contract dispute with the Minnesota Vikings, softly said, "I played terrible. We've got no timing, we don't play well as a unit. We don't play any way at all."

Had Bad Day

Kapp had a bad day. He completed only 7 of 21 passes for 101 yards, had two intercepted and wound up with a minus one yard when he had to carry the ball.

The injuries to Carter apparently were not serious. He missed only one play after being flattened on the first running play of the game by Cincinnati. But a short time later the Patriots blasted him again and he went to the sidelines to stay for the rest of the game.

Cowboys Rout Oilers, 52-10

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Cowboys are in the National Football League playoffs for the fifth consecutive year, but even a never surrender die-hard like defensive tackle Bob Lilly admits, "Honestly, I didn't think we'd make it."

Five weeks ago you couldn't have gotten an old Don Meredith T-shirt for the Cowboys' chances after a 38-0 humiliation by St. Louis.

But Dallas ripped off five straight victories—with coach Tom Landry calling the plays—for Craig Morton. The 52-10 rout of Houston Sunday was the caper.

Coupled with Los Angeles' 31-3 victory over the New York

Giants, Dallas won the National Conference East with a 10-4 record. The Cowboys host the Detroit Lions at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Cotton Bowl in the first round of the NFL playoffs.

Raging Defense

Lilly, who led a raging Dallas defense that hasn't allowed a touchdown in 17 quarters, said he thought the St. Louis game had cooked the Cowboy goose.

"I thought we had the kind of team that could come back and win the next five games and have some fun doing it," he said. "But I really didn't believe."

Quarterback Morton, who threw five touchdown passes with four stitches in the palm of his right hand for a cut suffered last week, chimed in.

"Yes, I'd say we had our doubts."

Plenty of Talent

Landry said "It's a tremendous day for us. It's unbelievable how five weeks can make the difference. I don't think we are so much a new team, as we are a different team from the Don Meredith (former Cowboy) quarterback and now a television sports analyst) leadership."

Landry said Dallas will open work at 1 p.m. today for the Lions.

"Detroit has plenty of talent and certainly they are one of the hottest teams right now. They also have really turned it around this season. It should be a real tough defensive battle."

Morton had his finest hour as a Cowboy quarterback hitting 12 of 17 for 349 yards.

Fleet wide receiver B.B. Hayes caught touchdown shots of 38, 38, 15 and 59 yards and rookie Reggie Rucker snared a 52-yard bomb. Hayes finished the day with six catches for 187 yards.

"It was the biggest day for me as a Dallas Cowboy," said Hayes, who celebrated his 28th birthday. Given the game ball. Hayes sent it up in the stands to his wife.

The loss was the last game for Houston coach Wally Lemm, who has resigned. Houston finished the year with a 3-10-1 record.

Former Cowboy

Oiler quarterback Jerry Rhyme, a former Cowboy, suffered a shoulder separation and doctors will operate today.

Rhyme said of Dallas "They are right on the button and they will be tough to beat in the playoffs."

It was hard for the Cowboys not to tune in on the score of the Ram-Giant game. The crowd of 50,504 fans—smallest since 1965—roared each time a score was announced.

Lions Blank Packers To Gain Playoff Berth

13-yard pass to John Spilis, but that one was nullified when ineligible receivers (Ken Bowman and Bill Lueck) were detected downfield, bringing a 15-yard penalty.

Doug Hart set up the second by blocking an Errol Mann field goal try from 51 yards out late in the same period, the Packers taking over at the Lions' 38.

But, after reaching the 13, an incomplete pass, fumble by Starr for an 8-yard loss and another 2-yard loss by Dave Hampton on a draw forced an ill-fated 30-yard field goal attempt by Dale Livingston. Jim Yarbrough burst through to block it and Barney picking up the loose ball, returned it to the 30.

receptions, also that Donny Anderson, once a formidable candidate for the 1,000-yard club, emerged with his best rushing total ever, 853 yards, despite a mere 17 yards in 13 carries against the Lions' vaunted defense.

But, in sum, the Packers had finished the year as they had begun — losing a shutout to the Lions, 40-0 victors in their first meeting Sept. 20.

And that is a virtual repeat of the last time they blanked twice in a season — in 1949, when they lost their opener under the late Curly Lambeau to the Bears, 17-0, then fell to the Washington Redskins in their next to last appearance, 30-0.

The Packers also reached Detroit 45 in the third quarter, but this one dissolved when Donny Anderson was held to a yard on second down and Starr, under a heavy rush, was unable to hit John Hilton along the sidelines.

That disappointment came on the heels of Mann's second field goal, a 16-yarder set up by Barney's 74-yard runback of the second half kickoff.

His excursion, ended at the Green Bay 26 by a clutch Doug Hart tackle, was the beginning of a dazzling one-man show. He later engineered that 65-yard punt return, abruptly checked at the Packers 13 by Rudy Kuechenberg, then picked off a Starr pass and returned it 49 yards for a final, superfluous touchdown with 9:47 still remaining.

Extend Win Streaks on Home Ice

Rangers, Black Hawks Roll

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Between them, the New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks have played 34 games on their home rinks in this National Hockey League season. And neither has been a very gracious host.

Both the Rangers and Hawks extended their home ice unbeaten streaks Sunday night. New York thumping Vancouver 5-1 while Chicago rallied to nip Pittsburgh 2-1.

In other NHL action Sunday, Toronto tripped Buffalo 4-2, California blasted Detroit 7-3, Boston ripped Minnesota 7-2 and Los Angeles walloped Montreal 7-2.

The Rangers extended their home ice unbeaten string to 16 games, bunching three second period goals 3½ minutes apart. Toronto won its sixth straight game, knocking off Buffalo to move within one point of fourth place Vancouver in the East Division.

Dave Keon's tie-breaking goal in the second period moved the Leafs towards their victory—Toronto's second straight against their old coach, Punch Imlach, and the expansionist Sabres.

Bill Hicke and his younger brother, Ernie, each scored two goals as California routed Detroit, completing a disastrous weekend for the Red Wings, who allowed 16 goals in two games against the Pittsburgh Penguins and the Golden Seals.

Meanwhile, in the West, the Black Hawks used third period goals by Pit Martin and Bobby Hull to squeeze past Pittsburgh. Hull's goal with 2:36 left to play, extended Chicago's home ice winning string to 13 games. The Hawks are unbeaten in 18 starts at Chicago this season and lead the West Division race by nine points.

Boston continues to streak at the top of the East Division. The Bruins have won eight straight games to maintain their two-point edge over the Rangers.

Hot-shooting Phil Esposito picked up two goals and two assists for Boston, increasing his amazing scoring pace to 64 points in 32 games. Esposito

Snowmobile Race Mishap Injures Four

CRANDON (AP) — Four persons were injured when a snowmobile jumped out of a race course and into a crowd of spectators Sunday.

Authorities said the snowmobile's throttle evidently jammed, and that the driver was thrown off.

Three persons were treated at a Rhinelander hospital for injuries, and a woman was hospitalized.

Forest County authorities said the snowmobile was one of two which crossed as they crossed the finish line during a snowmobile derby.

The injured persons were from Elcho, Monico, Pelican Lake and Oak Creek.

Garrett Ace As San Diego Whips Chiefs

Stuns Former Mates With 2 Touchdowns In 31-13 Victory

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Just like five years earlier, when he bowed out of collegiate football with a brilliant day, Mike Garrett bowed out of pro football by stunning his former teammates, the Kansas City Chiefs.

Garrett, the mini-halfback some said was too small for pro football, helped the San Diego Chargers close out another mediocre season — the fifth in a row — with a Heisman Trophy-like showing. He scored twice, once on a spectacular 44-yard pass play, and ran for 60 yards in 10 carries.

The final score was San Diego 31, Kansas City 13 in a game that meant little: both teams had finished out of the money.

Miami clinched the final NFL playoff spot, leaving the Chiefs with a 7-5-2 record for second place in the Western Division.

The Chargers, 5-6-3, wound up third for the fifth straight year.

"Those were probably the last two touchdowns I'll ever score in my life," said the 26-year-old five-year pro with aspirations at a baseball career in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization.

Minnesota Routs Falcons, 37-7

Van Brocklin Praises Vikings

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mighty Minnesota, seeking a second straight journey to the Super Bowl, picked up a battered admirer Sunday—the Vikings' former coach, Norm Van Brocklin.

The Vikings, posting their 10th victory in 11 games, flogged Van Brocklin's Atlanta Falcons in the regular season finale 37-7, avenging a 10-3 loss to the Falcons here one year ago, one that snapped Minnesota's 12-game winning streak.

Asked to compare the 1969 and 1970 Vikings, Van Brocklin quipped, "What was the score?" He repeated each and added, "That is the difference in this year and last. They're a big, strong football team."

"Gary Cuozzo is a better passer than Joe Kapp and he showed that this afternoon," Van Brocklin said. "He threw very well and their receivers got position on us. They beat us... and good."

Cuozzo, who had missed the two previous Viking games with a sprained right ankle, completed 13 of 20 passes for 175 yards, one eight-yard touchdown strike to John Beasley.

Sets Up 2 TDs

His passing set up two other scores in a 21-point second period that put the Vikings in command.

The victory really wasn't needed since Minnesota wrapped up the National Football Conference Central Division title several weeks ago.

The Vikings face San Francisco, West Division champs, next Sunday in the playoffs. The 49ers won the division Sunday with a 38-7 conquest of Oakland.

Neither Cuozzo nor Coach Bud Grant were ready to express preferences as playoff foes, since San Francisco didn't clinch its title until Minnesota was well underway on its trip back home.

"You got to beat somebody," Grant said. "You can't play Boston or New Orleans."

Fred Cox, the steady Viking kicking star, booted field goals of 40, 15 and 37 yards to run his National Football League scoring record to 112 consecutive games.

Hits Osborn

Reserve quarterback Bob Lee hurled a 28-yard touchdown pass to Dave Osborn in the third quarter. The other scores came in the second period on one-yard runs by Osborn and Clint Jones.

Cuozzo said his ankle gave him no trouble during the game.

Asked if he felt any pressure replacing Kapp, who failed to

Barney Amasses 223 Yards on Returns

DETROIT — Detroit's playoff clinching victory was now 45 minutes old but Lem Barney, crouched in a corner locker and last season after the Braves acquired him from the New York Mets.

The move will allow Atlanta to give Cardwell his unconditional release, trimming the team's winter roster to 37 players.

stripping tape from his ankles, was still hemmed in by reporters.

Barney, who has amassed the incredible total of 223 yards in return yardage, flashed a boyish smile and announced that his longest excursion of the day had been somewhat by design.

"We had gone over the middle return at halftime," said Barney, who had spurred 74 yards with the third quarter kickoff to trigger Errol Mann's second field goal of the afternoon and a 6-0 Lion lead.

Barney, who also had set up one touchdown with a 65-yard punt runback and scored the other on a 49-yard maneuver with an interception, explained, "We were told not to clog things up in the wedge, but to spread it out."

Touched at 25

"Perry Williams got a hand on me down on about their 25. I spun out took a left and was able to get away... When I got down into Green Bay territory, though, Doug Hart had a real good angle on me. I tried to break outside but I couldn't get away from him."

"On the punt return, somebody — I think it was Clarence Williams — overran me. I gave him a juke step, then broke it back to the left, then to the right."

"On the interception, I noticed that Bart Starr had been throwing outside patterns all day, so I played harder to the outside and managed to pick that one off. I had Forrest Gregg and one other big guy to beat and I just barely got around 'em into the end zone."

His ebony features folding into a wide grin, Barney volunteered, "The hardest lick I got all day was from Wayne Walker when I got into the end zone after that interception."

"But that was a jubilant hit. I can stand that kind."

Gordon Catches 9

Bears Whip Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jack Concannon threw three touchdown passes Sunday as the Chicago Bears whipped the New Orleans Saints 24-3 and burdened the Saints with their worst season in their four-year existence in the National Football League.

Concannon hit Jim Seymour with touchdown tosses of 22 and two yards and connected with Dick Gordon on a 14-yard touchdown pass.

Mac Percival rounded out Chicago's scoring with a 50-yard field goal.

It was Tom Dempsey Day in New Orleans, and Dempsey accounted for New Orleans' only points with a 47-yard field goal. However, he had one blocked and missed another attempt.

The victory gave the Bears a 6-8 record and dropped the Saints to 2-11-1.

Gordon—Top Receiver

Gordon, who entered the game leading the National Football Conference with 62 receptions, caught nine against the Saints for 119 yards. Danny Abramowicz, who was tied for second with 51 catches, caught four for 57 yards.

The Bears drove 59 yards in five plays for their first touchdown on Concannon's 22-yarder to Seymour which came with 1:01 remaining in the first half. Concannon hit Seymour with the two-yard TD pass in the fourth quarter after directing the Bears on a 10-play 80-yard drive.

Rams Annihilate Giants But Fail to Earn Playoff Spot

NEW YORK AP) — The Los Angeles Rams won the game they had to win but the only tangible results were negative—they don't have a playoff spot and they probably don't have a coach.

Stung by what linebacker Myron Pottios termed "the Giants' mauling off," the Rams annihilated the New York club and its title chances with an impressive 31-3 victory Sunday that at least satisfied their collective egos, if nothing else.

For despite the triumph, San Francisco—and not Los Angeles—won the Western Division championship in the National Football Conference—and that may have ended George Allen's coaching reign with the Rams. Allen's job has been rumored to be in jeopardy ever since the end of the 1968 season when he was fired by owner Dan Reeves, but was reinstated under pressure from the players.

Contract Runs Out
Allen's contract runs out this year and the figuring is it won't be renewed.

Allen may have acknowledged that in a roundabout way in the dressing room after the game when he was asked pointedly if he would be coming back next year.

"No," he said, "I've been offered a job with the Red Cloud Athletic Association of Pine Ridge, South Dakota."

The association is a welfare group for Indian children and Allen is a past president. But his words only brought smirks. So he added:

"Seriously, I mean that."

Despite the job offer in South Dakota, rumors have continued to link Allen's future as a coach with either the Washington Redskins or New Orleans Saints.

But, when he was pressed even further for comment, he turned the subject elsewhere with considerable skill.

Not Concerned

"I'm not concerned about George Allen," he pointed out, "I'm only concerned about my players, my coaches and the Los Angeles fans. I'm proud of what I've accomplished in the last five years . . . very proud. I'm proud of my team and proud of myself."

Allen's pride was strengthened by Roman Gabriel, who led the Rams on four consecutive first-half scoring drives that built an insurmountable 24-3 lead and kept them alive in the Western Division race until some three hours later when the 49ers defeated Oakland 38-7.

But they had won the game they had to win to remain alive, and they had the extra satisfaction of helping the Dallas Cowboys edge the Giants for the Eastern Division title.

Mouthing Off

"We got a lot of motivation during the week from the Giants mouthing off," said Pottios. "We resolved to play at our peak. Perhaps they psyched themselves up that way, but it backfired to our advantage."

"The entire Giant team was beaten up physically," said defensive end Deacon Jones with a smile. "We put it to them and demoralized them."

After Pottios explained the why, and Jones the how, defensive tackle Merlin Olsen explained the meaning.

"People kind of poked fun at us, said we were all old men," Olsen said with considerable emotion in his voice. "Some stories implied we were a team that couldn't do it anymore. That kind of thing triggered the of the third quarter when Bobby Duhan fumbled a punt that was recovered by Los Angeles' Pat Curran on the New York nine. Les Josephson banged one yard for the touchdown.

The Giants, who had surprised with a bold bid for the Eastern title with nine victories in 10 games, following an 0-3 start, never seemed to be able to get untracked and were unable to spring their most explosive runner—Ron Johnson—on any long gains.

Johnson, however, did manage to gain 34 yards in 12 carries for a season total of 1,027 that made him the first player in Giants history to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing.

Much of the damage inflicted by the Rams on the ground came at the expense of the left side of the Giants' line, weakened early in the game when tackle Jerry Shay suffered a broken right ankle.

In the first overtime, Warden gave LU the lead with a driving lay up with 2:01 left in the 5-minute segment. The Devils' Mark Stoddart hit an 18-footer with 1:40 showing to conclude the scoring.

Stoddart provided Eureka with the edge, 70-68, on his third corner shot, but Linnen evened the score with his lay up to account for the scoring in the third overtime.

Eureka went ahead, 72-70, with 4:40 left in the fourth overtime as Mike Fischer dropped two charity throws. ## Downgrading the Revolutionaries

Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst had some sensible things to say about the handful of revolutionaries who would like to take over our government.

"I think it's superficial. It's very thin. The only real power they have is to create apprehension, hysteria and fear. They don't have the capacity to destroy the government . . . The worst thing would be that you could have a reaction to them that there would be repression and this would create an incubator for further violence. Free speech is the best antidote to the radical in this country. Put him on television, in the newspapers, on radio. Let the people hear what he has to say. I would guess that 98 per cent of the blacks and 99 per cent of the whites don't believe it. But if you were to deprive them of free speech, then people could say, 'it's an evil society.'"

It seems remarkable — or, perhaps only a sign of free speech — that Mr. Kleindienst works for the same Justice Department that is in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and its chief, J. Edgar Hoover. Mr. Hoover a couple of weeks ago told a congressional committee that there was a plot underfoot to kidnap a high government official. There may indeed be such an idea among the more extremist and violent revolutionaries. But we doubt very much that it has anything to do with the various "conspiracies to save lives" headed in general apparently by various religious people who want to find a way to end the war sooner than seems to be planned by President Nixon.

Mr. Kleindienst also said that if such a kidnapping should take place, unless it were of the President or the Vice President or members of their families, that the government should in no way bargain with culprits. "There's no way you can protect everyone . . . there isn't really an effective way to prevent a kidnapping . . . it would be better to make one sacrifice, then there would never be another incident." This is a difficult way to look at the problem but Mr. Kleindienst is probably right. There are extraordinary measures in security regarding the top men in the executive department and their families but they could hardly be expanded to cover everyone in government.

Those Participation Sports

How about attending a high school wrestling match?

Admitted, such an event does not have the glamour of the "major" sports, like basketball or football.

What it does have, however, is opportunity for students in almost every age bracket, including slender 95 pounders, to compete on an equal basis. Fellows who would have almost no chance for the basketball team, and even less in football, can have the thrill of participation and the hope of winning a championship.

You've probably never seen a high school wrestling match.

That's how it was with us, too, until the other day, when interest in several of the lads over at Appleton East spurred us on to attending.

You might be surprised at the size of the crowd. Not large, to be sure, compared to the people the bigger sports draw, but still a fine smattering of students, parents and others. And certainly there was a lot of enthusiasm.

The most meaningful moment was when the two teams lined up at either side of the mat, each from the lightest to the heaviest. Very impressively did that sight underscore the fact that here's a sport which, more than many others, gives all sizes a chance. And you noticed this all the more when you found out that the smallest wrestler on East's team is one of its co-captains.

There are other sports with similar opportunities. Swimming comes to mind.

They deserve hearty support. If we really want to keep the tail from starting to wag the dog we'd better see to it that the prevailing philosophy at our schools is that of offering the widest possible participation, rather than that of winning championships. If the championships come, that's so much frosting on the athletic cake. But a school's athletic program can be a very successful one even with minimum of trophies in the showcase.

Protest Spreads in Russia

The Soviet Union, as everyone knows, is a nation controlled by the Communist party which is supposed to have absolute authority in just about every facet of life. But there are some interesting things happening.

This year's Nobel prize winner in literature, Aleksanji Solzhenitsyn, did not go to Sweden to receive his award because he frankly said that he might not be allowed to come home again. And this is one of the aspects of protest movements within the Soviet Union — the protestors are not defecting or escaping from Russia. Instead they are determined to stay, under often difficult circumstances, and work for better conditions and especially more liberties in their homeland. They are obviously patriots in the deepest sense.

It is also interesting that so many of the protestors are of an intellectual status that the Kremlin seems confused as to what to do about them. True, there have been trials and a number of dissenting writers are in Siberian labor camps. But they were not taken summarily to dungeons, tortured and shot as would have been the case in the days of Stalin. Some have been sent to mental hospitals but the outcry by others against this practice has resulted in the embarrassed release of some. Their works are often not officially published in the Soviet Union but somehow they do get distributed. In fact only one book by the Nobel prize winner was published in Russia and has since been withdrawn.

Last week Mr. Solzhenitsyn agreed to join a "committee for human rights" in Russia, formed by scientists and writers to work for more freedom. It is unlikely to be recognized by the Communist party and must have that organization's approval before it is legal. Already the committee's founders have barred Communist party members from joining. But even if it operates illegally it is likely to survive unless there is a real crackdown in Russia. One member is a poet and singer who satirizes Soviet life and tape recordings of his works are readily available despite official disapproval. So are "underground" pamphlets critical of the government and the quality of life in Russia. Obviously there is considerably more dissent among intellectuals in Russia than reaches the news media.

How far the Kremlin will allow this trend to go is unknown. But once the door is opened even a crack, it is difficult to slam shut — especially when rather prominent feet are in the way.

Byron Kilbourn Dies in South

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Dec. 24, 1870.

The tidings of the falling of one of the pillars of the settlement, growth and prosperity of Milwaukee falls with a heavy sound upon the ears of the people.

Byron Kilbourn died on Saturday last at Jacksonville, Fla., whither he repaired some time ago in search of the beneficial effects of that genial climate upon his failing health.

We informed his family all resided there with him.

Mr. Kilbourn was a native of Granby, Conn., and was born on the 8th day of September, 1801. He was, therefore, in his seventieth year. His first visit to the site on which Milwaukee now stands and to where he later came was in 1834.

Officers of the newly organized visual Aids Club at Appleton High School were Dick Heller, president; Tom Mann, vice president; Delton Roehm, secretary-treasurer, and Willis Elsner Jr., sergeant-at-arms.

Miss Jane Klingert, Appleton, was one of 38 students who received certificates for the completion of a neuropsychiatric course at the Illinois Neuropsychiatric Institute in Chicago. Miss Klingert completed 30 months of nurses training at Mother Cabrini Hospital before enrolling in the specialized course.

The Christmas concert scheduled at Seymour High School that week was cancelled by Principal M. A. Patchett because 111 students were absent from their classes at high school due to illness and 49 students were absent from the grade schools.

Secure Personal Physician Before Emergency Strikes

Editor, The Post-Crescent: The inability of certain persons to contact a doctor for prompt medical attention is a common complaint throughout the United States today. The problem usually occurs in our large, congested cities or in impoverished, sparsely populated areas. It should not, however, occur in Winnebago County. Unfortunately, we know it does.

There are those who will have you believe that when people really need them, our physicians are out diagnosing their golf games at a country club or off researching the water skiing in Acapulco. As a Winnebago County physician, I know these reasons are not even remotely true.

The real reason for the occasional unavailability of physicians in our area is simply a lack of communication — communication between the general public and the doctors who practice medicine in Winnebago County.

My fellow doctors and I firmly believe that all persons living in this area should have their own family or personal physicians. Whether they have just moved here or whether they are lifelong residents of the area, we believe they should make a point of seeing a local physician at their earliest convenience if they do not already have one.

Their first visit may simply be to have a routine physical examination or to have an existing medical problem checked. In either event, they will then become acquainted with a physician to call upon if they or a member of their family becomes ill. In an emergency, it is comforting to have an appropriate telephone number to call at their fingertips.

According to a recent survey conducted by the American Medical Association, more than 82 per cent of the American public say they have a personal or family doctor — one whom they may call whenever illness strikes. The survey indicates that concentrated efforts by the medical profession to encourage people to secure a personal physician before an illness are becoming more and more successful. This is precisely what my colleagues and I are trying to do.

But physicians are human, too. And they enjoy occasional vacations or days off as much as anyone. They can also become ill and require medical attention. The doctors of Winnebago County, therefore, have long made it a rule to have other physicians handle their calls whenever they are in any way unavailable. In this way, a patient can always reach a competent substitute.

If you don't have a physician, then contact one — even though you think you're in perfect condition. By doing so, you will have bridged the communications gap and gained the peace of mind that comes with the knowledge that should you suddenly need a doctor's care, you will get it — easily and promptly.

Divorce Reform Group Seeks To Organize on State Basis

Editor, The Post-Crescent: An open letter to all persons concerned in improving our present divorce laws:

We have recently organized a divorce law reform group with the basic objective of revising, updating and reforming the present Wisconsin divorce laws that need these particular changes. The purpose being that our divorce laws should coincide with our present society's way of life.

This letter is being circulated statewide to 28 newspapers in order to survey the amount of concern and to work with established groups of this kind, as well as to help start other groups or chapters so that we may become a statewide voice in the reformation of our divorce laws.

We are concerned with the sections of these laws that would make for better living for all. Not only all the parties involved in a past or present divorce action, but also for those that for some sad reason may have their marriages end in divorce in the future. This, of course, includes our children as they are the future.

We do not condone divorce, but believe in the sanctity of marriage. Yet since humans err, men and women are all prone to choosing an incompatible mate, therefore, as long as there is marriage, there will always be divorce of some kind.

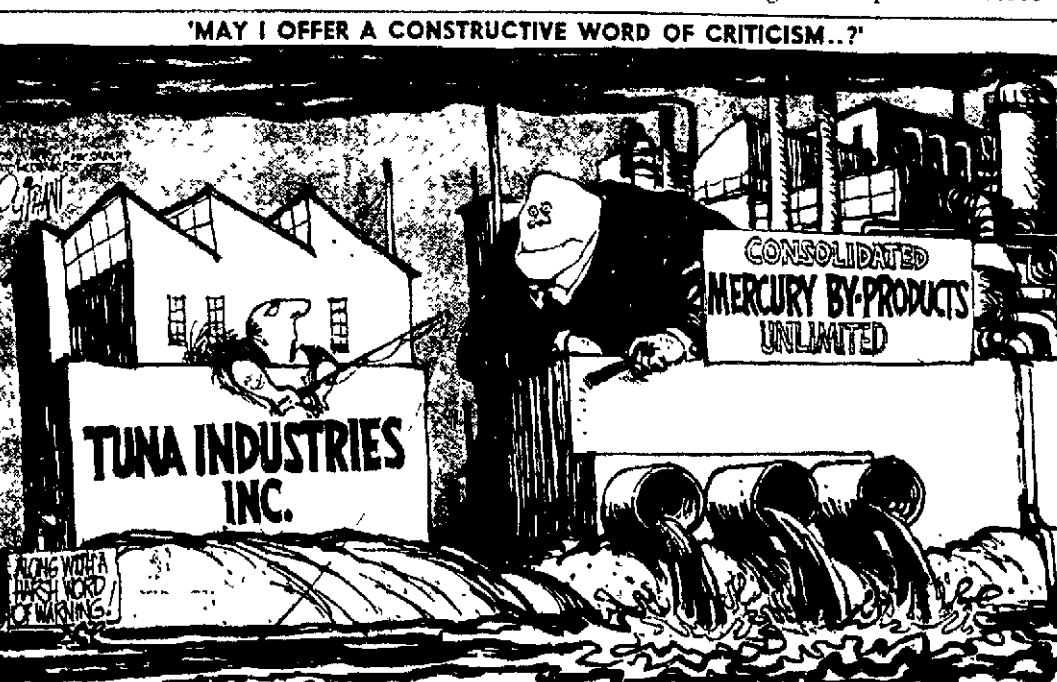

Marriage failure is all too frequent and involves relatives, friends and all of society, as well as the two parties involved and their children, if any.

Society (taxpayers) should be concerned because of the fact of paying for the many families that go on welfare or Aid For Dependent Children as a result of divorce. These monies, as you know, come from the taxes we pay, therefore this subject is as important to the happily married.

The Wausau Divorce Reform Group presently has the active assistance of members of the legal profession, civic organizations, and many other helpful medias who are guiding us, teaching us, correcting our ignorant, past and present opinions, thereby, showing us the way to help ourselves and others in updating the laws that need it and the proper manner required to accomplish this.

We have a lot of researching, learning and studying, to do, but mainly, our mental attitude toward objectiveness has to be our priority goal before we can legitimately work toward constructive changes of the present divorce

Wisconsin Report

Single Legislative Body Again May be Up for Discussion

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Probably no person in Wisconsin is in better position to anticipate trends in legislative thinking than H. Rupert Theobald, vigilant and hardworking chief of the Legislative Reference Bureau. That Mr.

Wyngaard

Theobald has chosen as the subject for one in the series of periodical reports on issues of current interest and concern the ancient idea of a unicameral legislature may be suggestive.

The idea of a one house legislature, for reasons not altogether clear, has had an appeal to persons who regard themselves as "liberals," in the loose political vocabulary of America. As such terms are used, the state is about to inaugurate a "liberal" administration.

The Assembly next month will contain the largest majority of Democratic members in its history, and in modern times the Democrats have shown most interest in a fundamental reshaping of the legislative process that would be embodied in the elimination of the bicameral legislative branch and the substitution of a one house mechanism.

Broad Claims Made Backers of the unicameral idea, including many academics as well as ideological liberals, generally argue that such a system would be more responsible and more efficient — in recognizing and acting upon the wishes of the people.

Another favorite argument is that the ideal of equal representation of the rank and file of the people is more easily attained with a single house.

Representation can be more direct and more responsible, since constituents will be able to identify their representatives more accurately and become better acquainted with them than is probable when each voter is represented by two persons, one in the senate, and one in the assembly.

It is sometimes asserted that such a one house legislature is more quickly adjusted to the changes in the popular temper, so that when the people make a decision in favor of one party or the other or one program or the other or against one party or the other, they will see their wishes put into action immediately.

All of which is perhaps persuasive and reasonable, standing alone. But it does not seem likely that such a drastic departure from tradition will soon be made in Wisconsin, for all of that. The history of the unicameral campaigns in America over a period of many decades is suggestive.

The idea is an old one but among the 50 states of this country, only one has adopted it. The state of Nebraska, moreover, acted under the prodding of one of its most effective and beloved political leaders when it created the first and only unicameral state legislative body in the history of the country.

The opposition view centers on the classical benefits of checks and balances. A two house legislature is a protection against rashness and impulse in law making, opponents insist. Wisconsin is replete with examples from its bicameral experience, as one house negates the actions of the other on issues of the moment that somehow disappear.

Provides Careful Action

Careful deliberation in the legislative process is more important than quick reaction to popular fancy, in that view, and it can best be assured by permitting one house to act only with the concurrence of the other. The idea of equal representation is not relevant since the state has achieved equal representation under the two house system.

Such economy in legislative operation that may result by eliminating one legislative house, moreover, is insignificant in the total disbursement of the state and may be a high price to pay for rash and impulsive legislative enactments.

In an assessment of the realities of politics, moreover, it is not likely that a Republican senate will consent to the desire of a Democratic Assembly for the abolition of the former. Nor is it likely that even a thoroughly Democratic senate would agree.

The major push for the unicameral idea was in the 1930s, when the Nebraska one house legislature was born. But recently there has been revival of interest, the Legislative Reference Bureau recalls. Four such proposals were offered in the last three legislatures. Some of the authors will be in their seats again when the gavel falls in the new assembly on Jan. 13. They presumably will renew their demands for a dismantling of machinery that has stood without essential change since 1848.

City Fortunate Taxes Increased Only $5.06

Editor, The Post-Crescent: The current topic of conversation by many of our citizens centers around the tax rate as established by the Appleton City Council on December 2nd.

In many instances we as aldermen are being criticized for the net increase of $5.06 over last year and yet if all the facts could be known by everybody, we can probably consider ourselves fortunate.

To set the record straight, had the City Council adopted the total budgets as submitted by the board of education and the various city departments, the increase would have been a staggering $24.95 per $1,000 over last year.

Obviously, we as taxpayers could not afford to be faced with an increase of this magnitude and it simply followed then that the mayor and aldermen had to employ stern measures to reduce this rate to somewhere within reasonable limits.

Admittedly every city department and the board of education were hurt in the process and their objective must now through necessity, be to find ways and means to live within their budgets, painful as it may seem.

Being an alderman during budget time is an unpleasant task, to say the least, but a job had to be done regardless of the consequences that would probably follow later.

In the final analysis we must solicit total dedication and cooperation by the entire city administration to meet this challenge in the year 1971.

Chicken Thief Sees Progress

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Henry L. Jones, 35, was fined $50 and sentenced to 30 days in jail Wednesday in Municipal Court for stealing two chickens.

Talking to the judge, Jones expressed the thought he was making progress of a sort. Last year, he explained, he had been fined $100 for stealing just one chicken.

Offense Tight, Lions' Schmidt Says

DETROIT — Joe Schmidt, contributing to the Detroit at-tackers' problems "Their defensive line did a helluva job against us," he said. "Our two fumbles down in there in the first half hurt us."

Schmidt, whose hirings had gone into the dressing room at halftime with a tenuous 3-0 lead, added, "That kickoff return by Len Barney at the start of the third quarter turned the game around. That was the big thing. On that touchdown pass to Charlie Sanders, I think the safety (Doug Hart) fell down as he was backing up. The line-backer was pushing Sanders hard on the play and he just made a break to the outside."

The play was called from upstairs."

Schmidt, who had helped the Lions win two Western Conference championships and a league title as a player, was asked how he compared those accomplishments with the rewards of coaching.

The most satisfaction I ever get," he said, "is when I walk from that dugout into the dressing room after a win."

That is how long the 37-year-old former linebacking great has been head coach of the Lions.

"I can't tell you how proud I am of this football team," said Schmidt, whose athletes closed out the regular season with five straight victories and a 10-4 record.

Assessing the day's performance, he asserted, "Defensively we did a helluva job. Offensively, we were just too tight."

Chicago Rips Cavaliers on Big 2nd Half

New York Bombs Suns; Pistons Top Royals, 136-132

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cleveland stock shot up with a 46-42 halftime lead over Chicago . . . but it turned out to be a Bull market, anyway, by the time it was over.

The first-year Cavaliers, who haven't beaten an established National Basketball Association club yet, was on its way Sunday night with a four-point lead at the intermission.

However, it was an old story in the second half as the Chicago Bulls poured it on and surged to a 116-103 victory.

Elsewhere in the NBA, New York beat Phoenix 133-118; Milwaukee trounced Buffalo 131-101; Detroit whipped Cincinnati 136-132 in two overtimes; San Diego topped Seattle 110-108 and Philadelphia outlasted Portland 134-132 in overtime.

In the ABA, Texas bombed New York 118-106 and Utah stopped Carolina 129-108.

Bulls Shoot Back

Chet Walker scored 12 points and Jerry Sloan chipped in with 11 in the third period to help Chicago shoot back from the four-point halftime deficit.

The Bulls hit 15 of 27 first quarter shots to take a 32-18 lead, then went flat in the second period as Cleveland steadily built its lead behind John Warren. Then Walker and Sloan took over in the second half.

Walker wound up with 24 points and Sloan had 17. Warren led the losers with 15.

New York hit 31 of 51 first half field goal attempts to establish a 21-point halftime margin, then coasted over Phoenix. Walt Frazier scored 19 of his game-leading 26 points for New York in the first half.

Elvin Hayes' 35 points guided San Diego over Seattle.

East Grapplers Take Second in Kiel Invitational

KIEL — Appleton East's wrestling team finished second to Denmark in the Kiel Invitational Meet held here Saturday.

The champion Vikings scored 94 points to edge the Patriots, who ended with 90. Trailing in order were Sheboygan South, 43; Kiel, 39; West Bend West, 36; Kewaunee, 35; Oostburg, 20, and Howards Grove, 18.

East grapplers taking first places included Paul Kindschi (98), Dennis Vandeburg (145), Jim Butler (155), and Dan Huelsbeck (187).

Patriot seconds were garnered by Bob Sanders (112), Jeff Brown (185), and Larry Turkow (HWT), while Scott Lawson (105) and Greg Grummer (126) won thirds.

Purdue Upsets Kentucky '5'

South Carolina Gets Scare but Shades Virginia Tech, 78-76

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Oh, there's no place like home for the holidays . . . except if you're the Purdue basketball team.

Then, it's sometimes better to play your games on the road.

The Boilermakers were invited to the Kentucky Invitational Tournament over the pre-Christmas weekend and wound up treating their hosts most rudely.

The result was an 89-83 upset victory over Kentucky's third-ranked powerhouse Saturday night.

"We're a young team and a lot of the guys have been a little slow starting," said Purdue Coach George King, but he could have fooled Kentucky.

Bill Franklin tipped in one basket and scored on two lay-ups to spark Purdue's race-horse offense that buried the Wildcats with swift precision.

"Now we're putting it together," said King, after his surprising Big Ten team spoiled the Wildcats' 25-game home winning streak and handed them their first defeat of the year.

Receive Scares

Other highly-ranked clubs had scares over the weekend before pulling out nerve-wracking victories.

Second-ranked South Carolina squeezed by Virginia Tech 78-76; eighth-rated Southern California tipped Texas-El Paso 65-63 and No. 9 Drake held off Texas Christian 79-78.

"I've got to figure we were lucky," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire after Tom Riker's tip-in with a second left pulled out a hair-raising triumph.

South Carolina, its deliberate style of play steered by guard John Roche, held the ball for the last minute to set up the final shot. Roche knifed toward the basket and missed, then Riker pumped the ball through

'My Grandmother Could Have Played Better,' Groans Amsler

Post-Crescent News Service

DETROIT — Marty Amsler, a sudden and unhappy expert on the subject, had a four-word explanation for Lem Barney's "long ball" success against the Packers here Sunday afternoon.

"He has quick feet," said the ex-Bear, a militant member of the Pack's special teams and reserve defensive end.

"One time, Dave Bradley and I took a simultaneous shot at him, and I don't know how he got through," Amsler said, shaking his head in disbelief at recollection of the footloose Lion's feats en route to a 20-0 Detroit victory.

Barney, an all-pro cornerback, returned punt, a kickoff, and an interception 223 yards — or 61 more than the Lion offense amassed all afternoon.

"Great Moves"

"The guy makes great moves," Amsler said ruefully. "One time I was going in to wrap him up and all I got of him was an arm."

"I don't know what happened on that kickoff. You've got to have one man to force him to commit himself, of course, and the rest of the coverage team has to be coming down under control. I don't know about the rest of our guys, but I wasn't under control."

"I had a bad day," he said sadly. "My grandmother could have played better than I did."

Defensive captain Willie Wood, author of a third quarter interception that blunted a major Detroit drive and gave the Packers temporary hope, said, "I was just happy to get my hands on the ball."

Seventh Interception

It was the seventh theft of the year for the 34-year-old veteran, giving him the second highest one-season bag in an 11-year career total of 47.

That achievement was not sufficient to make him forget the afternoon's disappointment, he said.

"I feel terrible about losing this one," he said. "We just couldn't muster any offense. I thought the defense was superb — the defense played well enough to win."

"If you get in the scoring zone and don't come out with anything, as we did today, it hurts you — especially against a good team."

"And we had quite a few opportunities. But every time we'd get something going, we'd get a penalty or Bart would get dropped for a loss."

"Soup" Fells Hart

Fellow safety Doug Hart, innocent victim of Greg Landry's scoring pass to tight end Charlie Sanders in the fourth quarter, reported, "It was like soup down there on the goal line. When I turned to cover Sanders, I lost everything. In fact, when I fell, I slid some more."

Placekicker Dale Livingston, toweled himself down the line in the Packer dressing room, wasn't quite sure what had happened on his unsuccessful 30-yard field goal attempt, blocked in the second quarter.

"They told us (Livingston and holder Donny Anderson) when we came out following the kick that we were lined up a little bit short. But I thought we were back at least the standard seven yards, possibly seven and a half."

"Donny and I couldn't see just what did happen, it happened so fast. It was a good hold, a good snap and a good hit. . . But it happened so quick — I had no more than hit it when it was blocked."

Couldn't Hold Kick

Anderson had replaced Bart Starr as the holder, the Golden Palomino reported, "because Bart said he couldn't hold."

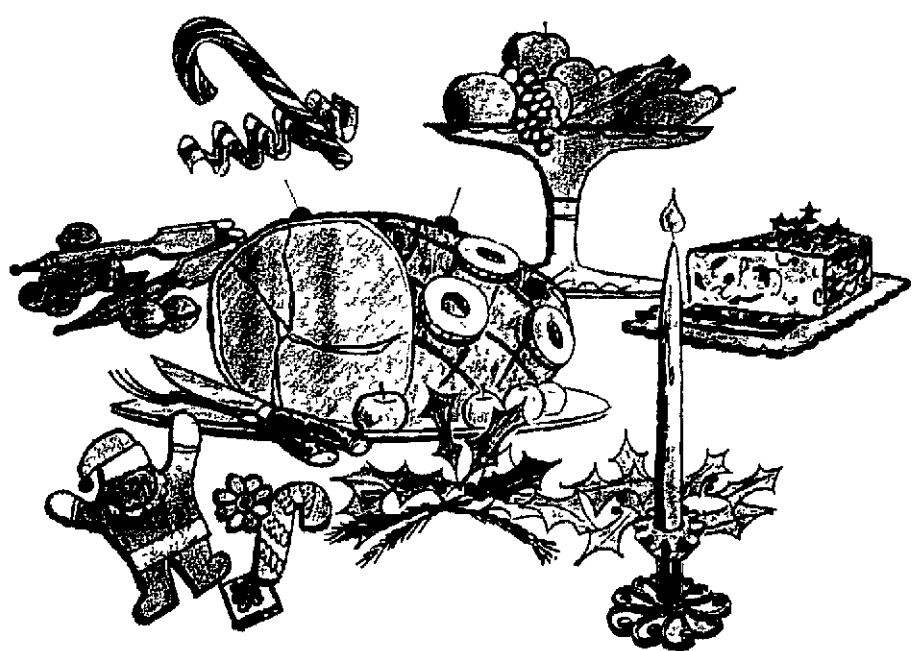

Livingston, situated next door, interposed, "Donny did a good job, too."

Anderson, who had to settle for 17 yards in 13 attempts in a final, long-shot bid to crash the 1,000-yard club, pronounced himself highly impressed with the Lions.

"I think they're the best team we've seen in the last four or five weeks," he said. "They're so strong everywhere."

Donny, discussing a brief fourth quarter exchange with the Lions somewhat anti-social Alex Karras, told it like it was. "We were fighting," he said. "If he doesn't like contact, he shouldn't be in the game. I've been getting hit for five years. I don't know why he doesn't expect to get hit once in a while."

Title Hopes End Skins Defeat Cards On Bakken's Miss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim Bakken, St. Louis placekicker, missed a 21-yard field goal attempt with 3:51 remaining Sunday and Washington killed the Cardinals' chances for the National Football Conference's East Division title with a 28-27 victory.

Bakken's miss came after the Cardinals had recovered their second Larry Brown fumble of the fourth quarter on the Redskins' 25.

The Cardinals penetrated to the Redskins 12 but quarterback Jim Hart was dumped for a seven-yard loss on second down. Roy Shivers picked up five yards to the Redskins' 14, setting up the field-goal attempt by Bakken, who earlier had kicks from 45 and 34 yards.

It appeared the Cardinals were headed for a come-from-behind, fourth-period victory after Hart hit John Gilliam on a 57-yard touchdown pass with 10:27 remaining to cut Washington's lead to 28-20.

Brown Fumbles

On the next series, the Redskins' Brown, pro football's leading rusher, fumbled on his own 32 and it was recovered by Chuck Latourette who raced in for a touchdown to make it 28-27 with 8:29 left.

Washington's quarterback Sonny Jurgensen passed to Brown on the first down of the next series. He fumbled again and the ball was recovered by the Cardinals' Bob Rowe on the 25.

needed a victory and losses by Dallas and New York to win the NFC's East Division title.

The Redskins, with a 6-4 mark, avenged a 27-17 loss at the hands of the Cardinals early in the season.

Jurgensen hit tight end Jerry Smith on touchdown passes of 10 and 14 yards and running back Charley Harraway scored on runs of three yards and one yard.

The Cardinals' other touchdown came on a 16-yard pass from Hart to tight end Jackie Smith.

Brown, picked up 44 yards in 20 carries to give him a season total of 1,125 yards—a Redskin record.

The Cardinals' McArthur Lane, gained 55 yards in 17 carries to leave him at 977.

Court Upholds Right Of Voting at Age 18

States Retain Control Over Suffrage in All Non-Federal Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — A splintered Supreme Court upheld today the key provision of the 1970 Federal Voting Rights Law, giving the vote to 18-year-olds in presidential and congressional elections.

At the same time, the court approved by an 8-1 vote the law's abolition of long residence requirements for voting for president and by a unanimous vote the suspension of literacy tests wherever they exist in the country for five years.

But the court turned around and ruled Congress has no power to order the states to allow 18-year-olds to vote in state and local elections.

These four conclusions by the court in judging the 1970 law were produced by four separate lineups. Justice Hugo L. Black was the key man so far as the 18-year-old vote was concerned.

Last Public Session

On the 18-year-old issue, Justice Hugo L. Black swung the significant fifth vote. He and Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall formed the majority to hold that Congress has the constitutional power to enfranchise 18-year-old citizens for national elections.

Then, Black swung to join Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and Harry A. Blackmun to bar any interference by Congress with the age for voters set by the states for state and local elections.

Single Dissent

Only Harlan dissented from the abolition of residence requirements of more than 30 days.

The 1970 law had lowered the voting age to 18 for all kinds of elections—national, state and local beginning Jan. 1—11 days from now.

Oregon and Texas had sued in the court against enforcement of the 18-year-old provision. Arizona had fought the literacy test ban and Idaho had opposed both the residence and 18-year-old provisions.

The states maintain the law takes away from them powers reserved to the states by the Constitution to control their own elections.

Power of Congress

Black traced to 1819 Supreme Court recognition of the power of Congress to regulate national elections.

He said if Congress could rearrange districts according to population and could supervise voting to prevent fraud, as the court has said, Congress certainly has the authority to permit 18-year-old citizens to vote in all federal elections.

"I would hold, as have a long line of decisions in this court, that Congress has ultimate prerogative of Congress to oversee elections," Black said.

"Similarly," he said, "it is the prerogative of Congress to oversee the conduct of presidential and vice presidential elections and to set the qualifications for voters for elections for those offices. It cannot be seriously contended that Congress has less power over the conduct of presidential elections than it has over congressional elections."

But, Black said, while Congress has final authority over federal elections the states have the power to set voting qualifications for their own governments.

"No function is more essential to the separate and independent existence of the states and their governments," he said, "than the power to determine within the limits of the Constitution the qualifications of their own voters and the nature of their own machinery for filling local public offices."

Carnegie Award Presented

Appleton Hero Recognized

The rescue of a woman from the Fox River last summer has earned recognition of the Carnegie Commission in Pittsburgh, Pa., for an Appleton man.

The commission today announced the names of 24 persons in 13 states and two Canadian provinces who will receive bronze medals and will share in $11,000 in money grants for rescues involving extraordinary risks.

The Appleton man honored is John C. Haugner Sr., 44, 218 E. Marquette. He is credited with saving the life of Anna T. Janssen, 56, Little Chute from drowning in an incident at Menasha last June 6.

When a motorboat in which she was riding in the Fox River went out of control and began drifting toward a dam, Mrs. Janssen, who could not swim, remained aboard while others jumped into the water and reached safety, the Carnegie citation said.

The boat went over the dam and Mrs. Janssen was thrown from the craft. She lost consciousness and was carried downstream by the strong current.

Haugner jumped into the water from atop a vertical wall at the bank and tried to swim to the woman, the citation stated. The current forced him downstream, but he intercepted Mrs. Janssen in seven feet of water about 40 feet from the bank.

Haugner turned her on her back and began towing her toward the bank. The current forced him further downstream and he began to tire, but he succeeded in reaching the wall where he secured a hold on a projection until further help arrived.

Mrs. Janssen was revived and has recovered.

Economy Altered

New Polish Chief Closer to Russia

WARSAW (AP) — Poland's new Communist leadership indicates it will revise the economic plan that spawned last week's rioting and will maintain total allegiance to Moscow.

Otherwise, its future course is unclear. Western observers consider the new party First Secre-

will have to reconsider carefully the problem of the economic plan for next year and for the whole five-year period."

The riots, he said, resulted from "inconsiderate concepts in economic policy. We will remove these." He said his administration will consult with "the working class and intelligentsia," adding:

"Recent events have reminded us in a painful manner this basic truth: that the party must always maintain a close link with the working class and the whole nation."

He said hostile forces cannot lead us astray or return us from the road of Socialism. We are going together with the whole great Socialist community and chiefly with our tested friend and ally, the Soviet Union. This friendship and alliance we will continue to strengthen in fraternal and cordial cooperation."

Radio Warsaw said the party's Central Committee instructed the new regime to consider "possibilities for improving the material situation of low-wage families with many children, who, as a result of the change in prices, have suffered most severe losses in their budgets."

3-Year Hike In Living Costs Is 18 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A family of four living in a city needs 18 per cent more money to maintain the same standard of living it had in 1967, says the government.

Based on spring 1970 costs, a 6 per cent increase from the year before, a family of four must earn $6,960 for a low standard of living and $10,664 for an intermediate standard.

The report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Sunday did not include an additional 3 per cent cost increase since spring, which would raise the figures to $7,168 and $10,893.

Other government figures show more than half the nation's work force, some 45 million persons, average only $6,292 a year or less than the amount required for a low living standard.

Family Budgets
The government report said taxes accounted for 30 to 40 per cent of the increase in the different family budgets. The estimated cost of Social Security, disability insurance and personal income taxes was $1,064 for the low living standard and $1,920 for an intermediate budget.

The government said family living costs were lowest in small cities and the South, although budget costs varied widely among cities and regions.

In another development related to the nation's economy, Dr. Paul A. Samuelson said Sunday he believes new steps taken by the Nixon administration to cure inflation are working but more is needed.

The 1970 Nobel Prize winner in economics said Nixon passed up a chance early in 1969 to use his leadership to back up fiscal and monetary policy.

"You can't expect too much," he said. "But nothing was done."

Samuelson recommended compulsory arbitration of labor disputes that affect the public interest.

He appeared on NBC's radio-television program "Meet the Press."

Crime Suspected in Hotel Fire

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Police detectives said today they were investigating possible criminal involvement in a hotel fire which left 28 dead and 27 injured.

Several survivors of the flames which raced through the upper half of the 12-story Pioneer International Hotel early Sunday said they had smelled a volatile substance in the corridors.

"I hadn't heard of that," was the only comment by Police Capt. Francis Kessler, heading the investigation.

Police detectives said they were conducting a criminal investigation but refused to comment when asked of the possibility of arson.

Window Exits

The fire in the 41-year-old building broke out on the sixth floor and flared through hall-ways and staircases, penning about 60 persons in their rooms with no way out except through the windows.

One woman plunged to her death from the seventh floor. "I'm still here—I'm still here," witnesses said she shouted shortly before making the fatal leap.

Among the dead were 13 prominent northern Mexico citizens, including two grandchildren of former Sonora Gov. Ignacio Soto, the wife and five children of Francisco Luken, Sonora police chief, and Dr. Jose Jesus Antillon of Hermosillo, one of his country's top cardiologists.

Smoke in Rooms
Harold Steinfeld, 82, builder of the hotel and owner of a department store died with his wife Peggy in their penthouse apartment.

Many of the survivors said they awoke with smoke pouring into their rooms.

Dr. Lewis Beck of Rochester, N.Y., said the heat forced him out his sixth floor window and onto a ledge.

"I began to think I was going to die," he said.

"I figured a leap would kill me quickly. I wasn't going to be able to hold on much longer."

Then he saw a Casa Grande, Ariz., physician, William Ford, shoeless and blackened with smoke, inching down a drainpipe. Beck joined him and both made it down to safety.

Two firemen were injured when a fire department ladder broke during the rescue attempts. Capt. Ellis Franklin hung upside down for 25 minutes on a broken 45-foot ladder before he could be rescued.

On the ground floor 659 per-

The hotel was sold by Steinfeld in 1963.

Asst. Fire Chief R. B. Slagel said construction of the building was completed in 1929 and it was not subject to building code safety changes made later.

"Today all interior stairways must be totally enclosed—that is, there must be a door between the hallway and the stairway," Slagel said.

"Had this been the case here, the blaze probably would have been confined to the original fire. The stairway acted like a chimney and the heat went right on up it and into the hallways."

Slagel said that "if there had been a sprinkler system, no one would have died." However, city fire safety laws do not require such systems.

Crime Rises 10 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime, during the nine-month period, the FBI said, and aggravated assaults with firearms increased 10 per cent.

Among property crimes, larceny of $50 or more rose 14 per cent, burglary 9 per cent and auto theft 6 per cent, the report said.

Suburban areas recorded the largest crime increase—14 per cent, the report said, while 16 per cent in 1967, 19 per cent in 1968 and 11 per cent in 1969.

General Worried About Aggression by Ally

Defense Against Russia Considered During World War II

LONDON (AP) — Ten months before D-Day, Allied military strategists discussed the possibility of repelling the Russians if they suddenly began overrunning Nazi Germany.

Gen. George C. Marshall, World War II U.S. chief of staff, asked his British counterpart in August 1943 if he thought Germany would help Allied troops enter Europe "to repel the Russians."

The quotation came from official minutes of the Combined Chiefs of Staff which were made public today in London and Washington.

Sir Alan Brooke, British chief of staff, told Marshall he had been thinking along similar lines. He said, however, that Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia did not think the Russians would try to sweep over Europe immediately.

Time to Recover

The British marshal quoted Dr. Benes as believing Soviet Russia would be bled so badly by the war that it would need a few years to get its economy going again.

Marshall commented in a meeting of the chiefs of staff that Russia was turning an "increasingly hostile eye on the capitalist world." The Russians, he said, were becoming increasingly contemptuous of their Western allies.

as Moscow would have liked.

Marshall also foresaw the troublesome plague the Western Allies would have in their relations with the Russians over zones of occupation in Germany. He suggested that planning officials of the Combined Chiefs of Staff study this problem, but there was no indication that this was ever carried out.

Early in the world conflict the Allies began to treat Russia with some caution. The combined Chiefs had technicians studying what weapons it could give Russia, what weapons and information it could not give the Russians and what the technicians were doubtful about.

The British chief of staff, while going along with Dr. Benes' view, told Marshall he

Obvious Result

Strategy against the Japanese discussed by the Combined Chiefs was based on the belief that Russia would not declare war against Japan, or if it did, then it would be so late the result would be obvious.

The major part of the records of meetings of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, a total of 100,000 documents, was made public today by the British and American governments.

Allied military leaders themselves fought running battles over strategy in Europe.

Time after time, the British sought to pull men and materi-

out of the Pacific to strengthen the planned invasion of Europe but U.S. leaders stubbornly fought back—and won.

Gen. Henry "Hap" Arnold, then chief of the U.S. Army Air Corps, grew so incensed by poor U.S. bombing results from Britain to Europe that he threatened seven months before D-Day to stop the flow of bombers to Britain.

Backed by Marshall

Marshall backed him up. In a long speech to the Combined Chiefs of Staff in December 1943, Arnold said U.S. planes in other areas put 60 to 70 per cent of their available bombers into the air for operations. The percentage in Britain, he declared, was only 50 per cent.

"There's no reason why they shouldn't send 70 per cent," he added.

Marshall agreed. He said that unless U.S. bombers out of Britain came up to the results of U.S. daylight bombers around the world there was no need for any huge force in Britain.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal of Britain made a spirited defense of Gen. Ira Eaker, head of the 8th Air Force, and told how difficult it was to get 2,000 bombers off the field for an operation.

No Reply

The U.S. leaders didn't reply. But, Portal, assailing a U.S. proposal to install a supreme air commander in Europe and the Mediterranean, told the Americans that either the Royal Air Force and the U.S. Air Force or the U.S. Air Force alone would have to do it.

110 Acres at Appleton

Annexation Is Upheld

Suits challenging Appleton's 1967 annexation of a small area to its south side, including a revenue producing power company substation, were dismissed Friday in a decision handed down at Oshkosh by Circuit Judge William E. Crane.

The ruling came more than a year after the annexation challenge was initiated by the Towns of Harrison, Calumet County, and Menasha, Winnebago County, from which the disputed land was taken.

The annexed parcel of 110 acres included land owned by the City of Appleton, individuals, and by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. The city annexed the land to its South Side chiefly from Harrison along with a strip of Oneida Street right-of-way in the Town of Menasha.

At stake in the case, besides the principal issue, were tax revenue collected by Appleton since the annexation. Had the towns' challenge been successful, Appleton would have been required to return the taxes it collected since 1967 which, by one estimate, have averaged $30,000 a year.

Revenue Source

A major source of revenue for the city has been the power company's S. Oneida Street substation. A portion of the utility taxes collected by the state have been returned to the city each year.

The towns argued before Crane that Appleton had used improper pressure in promoting the annexation, had acted "arbitrarily (and) capriciously," and had improperly served by certified mail the notice of intent to circulate the annexation petition.

The city of Appleton bought about 48 acres of land from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Roeland and Mr. and Mrs. John Roeland April 19, 1967, by land contract.

A month later the city published a notice of intent to annex the land and on June 1 the state Department of Resource Development ruled that the proposed annexation was not against the public interest and that the land was either urban in character or could be expected to develop as an urban area in the future.

The owners of about 95 acres of the total annexation package petitioned the city for annexation the next day.

While the towns charged that Appleton had "bought votes" for the annexation by purchasing the Roeland property, Judge Crane found that evidence supporting the charge fell "far short of the burden of proof required to upset" the annexation.

Crane noted, too, that even if the city had bought part of the Roeland farm to aid in its annexation proceedings "there is nothing in the law which would preclude it from doing so."

He concluded that the city acted neither arbitrarily or capriciously and that the city's notice of intent complied with state statutes.

Town of Algoma firemen vainly try to save this barn on a farm west of Oshkosh about noon Saturday. The barn, owned by Art Boelter and rented by Herman Klemz, was at 3320 20th Street Road. Klemz managed to save farm animals and some equipment before the barn was destroyed. A defective oil space-heater was given as the cause of the fire. (Post-Crescent Photo)

New London C of C Opens Its 'Year of Involvement'

NEW LONDON — "The Year of Involvement" is under way for the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber president William Borchardt announced that the 1971 membership drive will begin soon.

The chamber will be seeking to improve its failing financial condition through an increase in membership, and an increase of dues, through the Fair Share plan adopted in 1966.

Wallace Gruening, chairman of the Financial Committee announced the names of its members. Those working on the drive will be Tim Janke, Tom Wolfe, Lloyd Coppersmith, Ken Radtke, Bob Flease, Dick Stephenson, Iver Rudie, Mike Coyle, Marlin Brown, Jim Ehke, Don Pederson, Dick Stern, Mel Jungerberg, Paul Noel, and Don Schendel.

Gruening announced that the committee will meet at 7 a.m., Tuesday, for the kick-off of the drive. The membership committee will meet at the Franklin House.

Serves City

Borchardt noted that failing membership and poor finances are not the chamber's only problems. High on the list is the lack of community interest. He urged members to get involved in activities and by offering new suggestions for the city's benefit.

He pointed out that as well as a direct retail service organization, the Chamber's main function is that of a public relations firm for the entire city.

The chamber strives to publicize the virtues of the city and aid all concerned in its various projects.

The Committee of Committees has made the various appointments for acting committees for 1971. Charles Borchardt and Mrs. Harold Roepke will head the Retail Committee, Karl (Skip) Hammerberg and Charles Schmalenberg are the heads of the Public Relations Committee, Marlin Fuerst and Gene VanderZee, New London improvement, and Wallace Gruening, membership.

Regents Approve UW Health Center

Reorganization Is Planned

MILWAUKEE — After hearing that the University of Wisconsin Medical Center is "in trouble as is the health profession in the nation," the UW Board of Regents voted Friday to reorganize the facility.

Irving Shain, vice chancellor of the Madison campus and head of a committee that studied the problems of the medical center, told the regents that a serious crisis due to internal management problems needs to be met with a new commitment to the medical center.

The committee recommended that a vice chancellor for health services be appointed to direct administrative reorganization that would pull all the related health agencies into a renamed University Center for Health Services.

Included in the center would be the medical school, the school of nursing, the school of pharmacy, University Health Service, University Hospitals, State Laboratory of Hygiene and the Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute.

In supporting the recommendations, Regent James Nellen of De Pere, an orthopedic surgeon and member of the committee, called on the university "to respond effectively to all this crisis represents." He also recommended that Chancellor H. Edwin Young of the Madison campus "move with appropriate speed to implement the major recommendations and to assure prompt attention to the advisory recommendations as well."

The committee was formed last June following the resignation of the director of the UW Medical Center.

In his report to the regents, Shain said the committee found that the administrative structure of the center does not "facilitate an effective response to the statewide obligations of the university to the people of Wisconsin."

Part of the internal administrative crisis afflicting the center, the committee said, is the fact that it had been "too long set apart from other priority and budget concerns of the total university, allowed to drift in a state of benign neglect."

State support for the University Hospitals on the Madison campus, he said, "is one of the lowest of any teaching hospital in the country." The low level of support has resulted in "very high charges to patients" among other factors.

"The university administration must obtain financial support at a level which will permit the capital center for health planning to perform its educational function," the committee report said.

The administrative problems the group found include a lack of a clear definition of roles for the director of the center and the dean of the medical school.

The selection of a vice chancellor would help coordinate all the health sciences, the report said. The committee recommended, but the regents were reluctant to emphasize, that the vice chancellor also serve as a special assistant for health services. The regents preferred to await the arrival of the new president before making that order.

In a series of less imperative advisory recommendations, the task force said the dean of the medical school should coordinate academic and research programs. He should be advised by associate deans in clinical sciences, basic sciences and continuing education. The chief of staff of University Hospitals also should be an associate dean of the medical school to coordinate the two programs, the report said.

To expand the service of the health center the committee recommended a board of visitors, including both health professionals not associated with the university and health services consumers.

The regents accepted the report and Nellen's recommendations. They did not, at the Friday meeting, approve the provisions of vice chancellor or any of the other provisions.

In the wake of growing criticism of the procedure and criteria for granting tenure for UW faculty members, the regents also approved the formation of a committee to study tenure criteria.

The committee will include three faculty members, to be named Dec. 21, three administrators, and three regents. The regents, named by President Bernard Ziegler, include Robert Dahlstrom, Manitowish; Charles Gelat, La Crosse, and Frank Pelisek, Whitefish Bay.

Also it was anticipated that two sections of kindergarten, morning and afternoon, will be conducted and that two classes of special education may be needed in the elementary school here.

Kindergartens consisting of six sections, are contemplated for Birnamwood, Eldron and here.

CLINTONVILLE — The volunteer rescue squad was called about 10:30 p.m. Friday to the Rudolph Reinert residence, 115 E. Madison St., when Mrs. Reinert fell.

The emergency unit transported Mrs. Reinert to Clintonville Community Hospital.

NEW LONDON — Several hundred dollars damage and personal injuries to one driver resulted in a two-car accident at the U.S. State 45-54 intersection at 11 p.m. Saturday.

Loran A. Samson, 35, of 611 W. Spring St., sustained a cut on the lower lip, when his auto struck the rear of one driven by Clavin N. Handschke, 17, route 2, New London.

Suggestions on How You Can Cut Fuel Costs

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Q. With the prices of fuel now in a steep uptrend and with both government and private sources predicting this is merely the start of a long period of relentlessly rising prices for all forms of energy, how can you actually slash your fuel costs even below what they have been?

A. You can do this by following the 12 basic rules for conserving fuels in this column. You can, in fact, cut your heating costs by as much as 50 per cent if you will learn and obey these simple money-saving guides. And, by doing this, not only can you save money for yourself but you can also help slow the pace of the predicted price increases.

(1) Set your thermostat back at night to about 68 degrees and keep it at this level if you're away from home for 24 hours or more. Each degree you turn back will save you 3 per cent on fuel. Also, if you're not using certain rooms in winter, close the doors and turn off the radiators in those rooms.

Check Furnace Filters

(2) Have your thermostat checked: a faulty thermostat will waste fuel and increase your costs. If it needs replacement, consider a day-night thermostat which automatically sets your heat back at night and turns it up in the morning.

(3) Have your furnace and flues checked and cleaned. Replace your furnace filters to make sure you get your money's worth from the fuel you use.

(4) Insulate your exterior walls, ceilings and floors, trace any drafts of cold air and seal the openings. If your house is fully insulated, you can save as much as 45 to 55 per cent on fuel; if it is insulated to meet FHA standards, you can cut your fuel bills by 23 per cent.

(5) Caulk around windows and eaves and weatherstrip your doors. Every opening and crack wastes fuel; a few pennies spent on weatherstripping can save dollars in fuel. Install storm windows and doors if you can afford them, or if not, tack or tape clear plastic inside or outside the windows and over screen doors to seal cracks.

(6) Maintain the proper degree of humidity in your home, for the drier the air, the more heat you'll need to maintain a comfortable level. You can be comfortable with a temperature of 68 to 75 degrees if your humidity level is between 45 and 50 degrees, but you'll need a heat level of 78 degrees if your humidity drops to 25 per cent. If necessary, install a humidifier which will replace the moisture your furnace wrings from the air and thereby let you feel just

Truck Drivers Name Man of the Year

MADISON (AP)—Arthur P. Koehler, 56, was named Wisconsin "truck driver of the year" Saturday by the Wisconsin Truckers Safety Council. Koehler, a resident of Somers, has logged 18 million miles of no-accident driving over a 36-year span.

as comfortable at the lower temperature levels.

(7) Use your fireplace with restraint, knowing that fireplaces waste heat. When you're not using the fireplace, close the damper. If you don't have a damper, block the opening with a movable cover of wood.

(8) Keep your blinds and curtains open during the day to get the direct sunlight, but close them at night — making sure, of course, that the draperies don't interfere with the radiators.

(9) Turn off lights when you're not using them, and use your major and smaller appliances at off hours during the week and on weekends to avoid overloading energy facilities.

(10) Examine your radiator enclosures to make certain they are not heat traps.

(11) Repair any hot water faucets which are leaking: a leak of a single drop per second will mount to 700 gallons a year.

(12) Make your roofs and flashing wind and water tight. Open the vents in your attic and crawl spaces to reduce the potential for winter time condensation in insulation and other materials.

Just obey the rules and you alone will (1) minimize the threat of a fuel crisis, (2) slow the fuel price uptrend and (3) save up to 50 per cent a year on your fuel costs.

Staph Germ Common; Thrives on Dry Skin

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M. D. boils and sties for over a year. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our family of five has been fighting staph infections in the form of

Our pediatrician says the germ apparently is just on our skin and advises meticulous bathing habits. We scrub daily from head to foot with pHisoHex and still we get boils.

I have been told I am wasting my time scrubbing the house with a commercial disinfectant — but I am trying to get at the source. Where are these germs being harbored and what will kill them? — J. A. J.

Scrubbing the house isn't likely to solve your problem because the staphylococcus (staph) germ doesn't survive long except in its favorite environment. It thrives on moist skin.

It is a very common type of germ, so a great many people carry it around with them — and may suffer so consequences, because they happen to be resistant to it, and while the germ exists, it doesn't set up pockets of infection, such as boils on the skin or sties in the eyelids.

But when one is not resistant to the germ — trouble! And when the staph germ starts causing trouble, it can be stubborn as all-get-out. There are different varieties, staph aureus being the most vicious form. It also has the knack of becoming resistant to antibiotics.

About two-thirds of the staph usually is harbored in the nose and throat, 20 to 30 per cent in skin folds, particularly the armpits and groin.

Your scrupulous bathing is essential. Besides that, keep fingernails cut short (to prevent picking up the germs and carrying them to other parts of the body), and wash hands frequently and keep them away from the face, and particularly the eyes.

Although your nose and throat cultures didn't identify the type of staph that you have, this can be determined by cultures from one of the pus-producing boils. Then tests can be run to learn which drugs will be most effective in combating it. There are special forms of penicillin designed to treat some of the more resistant strains of staph.

Sometimes a vaccine is made from the cultures, and sometimes it helps, but by and large it isn't regarded as a very effective method.

Rather than scrubbing the house, put emphasis on frequent laundering of bedclothes and clothing which can be contaminated by moist, staph-carrying skin.

Good nutrition and adequate rest are important in bolstering resistance to the germs.

Staph is an ornery, deceptive germ, so when sties or boils break out, treatment should start at the first sign, and continue for several weeks afterward, to get rid of lingering germs.

Finally — as suggested by your negative nose-throat cultures — is there a source outside the family that may have staph infections? Or be a carrier? A close friend, relative, or one of the children's playmates may be supplying you with staph.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could the rather frequent use of citric acid in cooking cause chronic constipation? — H. A. B.

I don't see how it could have any such effect. Better look elsewhere for the cause.

Note to Mrs. O. P.: In some instances hormones may speed the growth of a cancer; in others, it can retard the growth. It depends on the type of cancer and the kind of hormones.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet, "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.
